Raymond F. Martin, also of Jamaica Plain, was the companion of McDonald. They were going to Jacksonville.

LANAPE SWEPT BY FIRE; WINS WILD RACE WITH DEATH

Lewes, Del., Nov. 18 (A.P.).—After winning a race with death, 367 passengers and crew, who spent a harrowing night at sea aboard the blazing Clyde liner Lenape, were safely landed here at daybreak today and cared for by the townspeople.

All except one aboard the ship, which left New York yesterday for Jacksonville, were safely accounted for.

The man who lost his life was identified as Robert Leverton, about 60 years old, of Willimansett, Mass. He became panic stricken and jumped overboard. His body was picked up by a fisherman.

According to passengers and members of the crew, there was no undue excitement and the transfer of all hands from the burning vessel to rescue ships was accomplished smoothly.

More than a dozen persons were injured and nine of them were taken to the Beebe Hospital here. Three or four others were also treated and left. Those in the hospital are:

MRS. JOHN SHIMKO, Brooklyn, N. Y., bruises.
MRS. MARY NOLAN, New York city, shock and exposure.

OFFICIALS OF B. & M. ACCUSED IN RUM 'PLOT'

Chicago, Nov. 18 (A.P.).—Two indictments charging the Boston & Maine Railroad, as a corporation, and twenty-four individuals, including Police Lieutenant Albert Winge and three prohibition agents with conspiracy to violate prohibition, were returned by the Federal Grand Jury today in the beer syndicate inquiry.

Besides Police Lieutenant Winge, David J. Allen, Jersey City, N. J., politician and former purchasing agent of the Federal penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga., three prohibition agents, Earl Curry, Raymond King and A. F. McCarthy; A. M. Kolb, a Chicago policeman; the Gilt Edge Beverage Company, a corporation operating a brewery at Lawrence; W. T. Lamoure, freight traffic manager of the Boston & Maine Railroad, North Station, Boston; George W. Nicholson, general agent, Boston & Maine Railroad, Lawrence, and J. C. Reardon, chief clerk to Nicholson at Lawrence were among those indicted.

MADONNA RETAINED IN DECORATIONS OF CLUB

All religious statues have been "removed" from the budding Argonaut Club, according to its sponsors, but a visit to the club rooms at No. 1 Bowes Wharf today revealed that a Madonna medallion still is a conspicuous club decoration.

In open defiance of Mayor Curley, but with every prospect of being held with a tight rein, L. C. Prior and William A. Gaston, Jr., sponsors of the club, were preparing today for the opening tonight by the sad sea waves that wash Atlantic avenue.

Amidst the rush and bustle, a reporter caught sight of the Madonna medallion, hanging from a ceiling beam and matching up strangely with the hanging whiskey and wine bottles.

The club was stormed today by an army of curious, the wide-eyed

BAN CO-EDS AT BIG FOOTBALL DANCE

Prospects of too much hilarity at the Harvard-Yale intercollegiate dance to be held at the Copley Plaza next Friday, the night before the football game, has caused the deans of girls' colleges in Greater Boston to place a ban on their students attending the dance.

The official order forbidding any student to attend the dance has stirred up feminine wrath at Simmons, Wellesley, Radcliffe and Boston University. Girls have been forced to cancel invitations of both Yale and Harvard boys to attend the "greatest dance of the year."

"Lack of dignity" and the fact the dance is "of questionable nature" caused the administration boards of

Women and Children Race to Decks in Night Clothes

There were many women and children among the passengers and some of them left the blazing vessel in the dark hours before dawn, scantily clad. Some wore only their night clothing. All wore life preservers until they were landed.

Hotel accommodations here were inadequate to care for survivors and the Presbyterian Church was thrown open for the comfort of the men, women and children, many of whom were suffering from the cold. Townspeople were aroused and soon hot coffee, sandwiches and other food was rushed to the assembly hall of the church and everybody made as comfortable as possible.

Arrangements were made to take all survivors north on a special train to Wilmington, Del., where those who desire will be transferred to a special train of sleepers and sent south. Others will be taken back to New York.

SCUTTLED AND SUNK.

After the safe removal of all passengers, the Lenape was scuttled beside the Delaware breakwater. Officials estimated the damage to cargo and vessel at $3,000,000.

Possibility that the fire was smouldering at the time the steamer left her dock at Pier 36, New York, yesterday, is under investigation by officials of the line. While the origin of the fire has not been definitely determined, an official announcement from Captain William Park, marine superintendent, states that it was possible that the fire resulted from cigarettes thrown into the hold by longshoremen.

The similarity of the fires, which destroyed the Lenape, and which some time ago destroyed the steamer Comanche of the same line, leads officials to believe that the causes might have been the same.

PASSENGERS IN FEAR.

The fire started about 10:45 last night while the ship was off Atlantic City. The night was clear and cold, the sea calm. The blaze started in the aft hold and was instantly fought by members of the crew.

About 11 p. m. some of the passengers noticed smoke and their anxious inquiries brought assurances from Captain Devereaux and his staff that there was no danger.

The flames continued to spread and the smoke became more noticeable. Many of the passengers left their cabins.

At 11:45, according to some of the passengers, the vessel's whistle was blown and all hands were advised to come on deck. All were reassured there was no serious danger. Previously, at 11:15 p. m., Captain Devereaux sent out an S. O. S. message. There was immediate response and he found that the nearest ship to him was twenty miles away and the next forty miles.

By this time the Lenape was abreast Cape May and Captain Devereaux decided he could make the Delaware Breakwater on the Delaware State side of the mouth of Delaware Bay.

The ship was met by the steam pilot boat Philadelphia, the coast guard cutter Kickapoo and coast guard boats from Cold Spring Harbor, N. J., and Lewes. Captain Devereaux called for a pilot and one was taken aboard from the Philadelphia.

RESCUE WORK SMOOTH

Shortly before 2 o'clock the pilot boat Philadelphia began taking off passengers. Fortunately the sea was smooth and the Kickapoo assisted in this work and took aboard about twenty persons.

About 4 a. m. flames broke through the upper decks and soon the Lenape was a mass of fire from stem to stern. Breaking away from her anchorage and swinging free with the wind and tide the big vessel floated up the bay. Great sheets of flame and enormous volumes of smoke shot up from her.

Mariners at once sensed the danger of the ship sinking in the channel in the path of vessels, or drifting out to sea, and the Clyde officials decided to scuttle her.

Two Boston Boys Were on First Trip From Home

Gerard McDonald, twenty-two, of No. 3 Rosemary street, and Raymond F. Martin, twenty-one, of No. 12 Hall street, Jamaica Plain, two of the passengers on board the Lenape, were traveling on their first trip away from home. They were on their way to Jacksonville.

McDonald, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. McDonald and brother of Mary P. McDonald, is a graduate of St. Thomas Aquinas School, Jamaica Plain High School and Boston Trade School and was formerly employed with the telephone company here.

Martin is the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Martin, and, like McDonald, graduated from St. Thomas Aquinas School. He is also a graduate of Mechanic Arts High School. They were seeking work.

Mrs. T. B. Cone, formerly of Sharon, Mass., was among the passengers rescued by the Seneca. She is the wife of Chief Engineer Cone of the Clyde line freighter Osage, which sails from Boston tonight bound for Jacksonville. Mr. Cone received a telegram from his wife stating that she was uninjured and was proceeding to Jacksonville by train.

Rescue Ships Find Crazed Passengers Hanging by Ropes

Lewes, Del., Nov. 18 (A.P.)—Tales of heroic rescues by Captain Irving Steele of the Lewes Coast Guard, as the Clyde liner Lenape, a mass of flames, ran inside Delaware breakwater, were related this morning by David W. Burbage, Lewes agent of the Clyde Line.

Captain Steele, in the Lewes Coast Guard Patrol Boat No. 1, was the first to reach the side of the ill-fated vessel after a vagrant breeze had again fanned to fury the flames which apparently had been conquered as the liner swept into the breakwater from her thirty-mile race.

The Lenape had reached the breakwater smoking, but apparently a winner in the battle. As she hove to, she swung parallel with the wind, which swept a scorching draft from end to end and the decks leaped into flame.

Meanwhile passengers who had been unable to reach the boats were dangling from the ends of ropes over the sides as close to the water as possible to escape the scorching heat.

Captain Steele drove his craft under the blazing sides of the liner and picked many of the struggling passengers from midair. Those who had dropped into the water were lifted over the sides of the patrol boat.

Tropical Radio First in Boston to Get S. O. S.

First news of the fire aboard the Clyde liner Lenape and rescue of its passengers was received in Boston by the Tropical Radio Company.

Wireless messages from the scene aboard the Lenape, the Tropical Radio operators also recorded the first rescue work.

Rescued Passengers Praise Heroic Work of Lenape Crew

Lewes, Del., Nov. 18.—Passengers of the ill-fated Lenape, brought here, were vigorous in their praise of the officers and crew. Chief Engineer Gaudet, who comes from Jacksonville, was given much credit for rescue work. He stuck to his post until nearly unconscious from smoke, passengers said.

David Rouch, a passenger from Jersey City, said: "The fire started in the after hold in the cargo and was first discovered shortly before 11 o'clock. The crew fought the fire for four hours and did not give up until the ship reached Delaware Bay and was run ashore. Everything in the way of baggage and cargo was lost. The crew did splendidly."

George Suffingham, New York, said that about forty of the passengers and crew were left on the ship after all lifeboats were filled to capacity and had pulled away. "There was no help in sight and we thought it was all over when the pilot boat Philadelphia came over and took us off," he said.

"The crew did a good job in fighting the fire, particularly the engine room men," said James Hanner, of New York City Fire Department, a passenger. "The men worked while the engine room was filled with smoke."

Chief Engineer J. J. Gaudet said the bulkheads were red hot while members of the engineroom crew were fighting the flames.

John Shinko, Brooklyn, N. Y., husband of one of the women in the hospital, said the alarm of fire was given after 11 o'clock, the passengers being told to dress at once. There was a little excitement, he said, but members of the crew circulated among the passengers reassuring them.

The work of the captain and the officers was particularly commended, Shinko said. He added that as he was being taken off in a boat to the pilot boat after the Lenape had reached the breakwater, he saw a man leap from the blazing ship. A motorboat rescued him.

Mrs. Nellie Moore, Troy, N. Y., said everyone took the situation calmly and that the crew displayed coolness in fighting the flames.

TIED BABY TO HER BODY.

Mrs. William C. Arnold, Northfield, Vt., told a thrilling story.

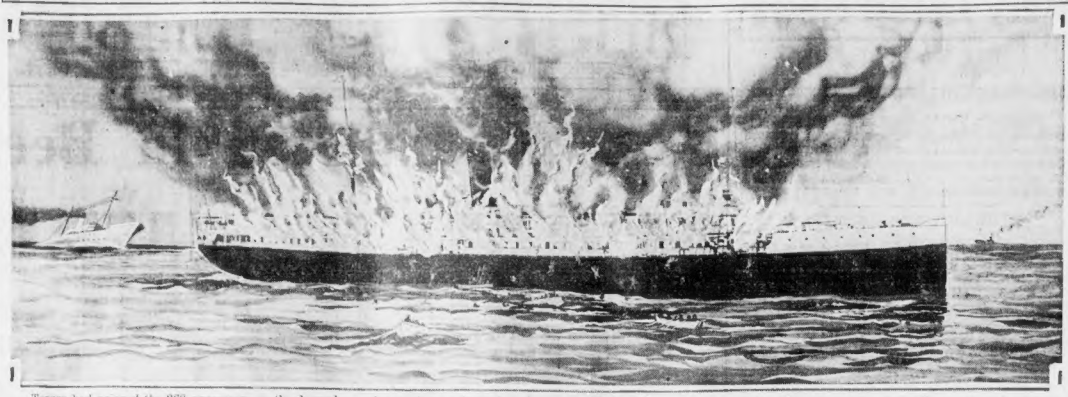
"I was going to Florida to meet my husband, who had established our home there," she said. "My sons, Willard, 10, and Gordon, 8, and my three-months-old baby, accompanied me.

"I was awakened by a fire alarm and hurriedly put overcoats over my boys' nightgowns and put lifebelts over the coats.

"Then I wrapped the baby in a blanket, donned my coat, with a lifebelt over it, and rushed to the deck, carrying my baby, the two boys following.

"We were all thinly clad, and the night was extremely cold. I thought

HOW FIRE SWEPT THE LENAPE, AS TOLD BY EYE-WITNESS



Terror had gripped the 268 passengers on the doomed Clyde liner when the fire-alarm was sounded, but according to an eyewitness this was as nothing compared to the frenzy that resulted when the rescue ships put in appearance. Men and women became frantic when escape seemed assured and in their haste to be ready swung over the sides of the ship and were found dangling on the ends of ropes and chains.

news of the successful completion of the rescue work.

"I was in scarf and with it I tied my baby to my body to protect it in any emergency which might arise.

TWO BOYS GOT AWAY.

"When it came time to get into the lifeboats, I was nearly frantic, as in the excitement my two boys were separated from me. I didn't see them again until I reached the rescue ship Philadelphia. I was overjoyed to see them both standing there on the deck.

"I got into the next to the last lifeboat to leave the ship and they had considerable trouble in launching it. Finally, when it was lowered, it was found to have considerable water in it. For half an hour we sat in water while the men rowed to the rescue ship. I lost everything I had on board, including my purse, but I saved my children and that is everything."

24 INDICTED

brewery owners and brewery employes, whose addresses did not appear, named in the indictments, were: Martin J. Hart, brewery owner; Thomas F. Walsh, brewery president; Charles J. McCarthy, brewery clerk; Thomas A. Mowen, connected with a brewery; John Grappman, brew master; Oscar Cebber, consulting brew master.

The others named were William Kelley, traffic manager, Chicago, formerly connected with a large mail order house here as traffic manager; Matthew Kolb, Chicago saloonkeeper; Theodore Kolb, Walter Matson, B. C. Thompson and William Scharf, Chicago truck drivers; Albert Boerman, clerk for the New York Central Railroad, and Frank P. Corcoran, agent for the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad at Morton Grove, Ill.

The syndicate of Eastern brewers and politicians, in co-operation with railroad employes and Western police and bootleggers was alleged by the government to have done a business of as much as $800,000 a month in contraband shipments.

The indictments covered only the Morton Grove, Ill., angle of the syndicate's operations, involving the seizure of five carloads of beer shipped from Lawrence, and delivered at Morton Grove on Sept. 9.

The three prohibition agents owed their indictment to the disappearance of three cars of the beer after the raid.

In a statement District Attorney Olsen said:

"The indictments are to be considered by us as our first answer to those who charged and to those who hoped that the so-called beer inquiry had collapsed. The investigation was started by me. I have had charge of it throughout, and will personally direct it to its end.

"At my request the intelligence unit of the Internal Revenue Department was specially assigned to gather the evidence which on itself is an assurance that the work would be thorough."

Walsh and Hart were said to be the principals in the ownership of the Gilt Edge Beverage Company's brewery at Lawrence, and Allen listed by the government as the brewery manager. The indictments were returned before Federal Judge J. H. Wilkerson, who fixed bonds at $5,000 for each defendant.

FREE AUTOMOBILE GARAGE SERVICE FOR PATRONS OF 90 STORES

ROOM FOUND FOR 1,500 CARS BY BOSTON MERCHANTS

A garage, free, in the forenoon, for customers of ninety retail stores, beginning Friday, was announced today by the Retail Trade Board of the Boston Chamber of Commerce.

The free garage hours will be from 8 to 11 o'clock. Each additional hour after 11 will cost ten cents, with a maximum charge of 35 cents for the day.

The North Terminal Garage, Commercial street, near the North Station, is the place where the privilege will be allowed. It has a floor space of four and one-half acres, without elevators or ramps, and can accommodate 1,500 cars.

Motorists will have to show sales slips or other records of purchases made on the day on which they park their cars. These purchases must be made at stores which are members of the Retail Trade Board.

The garage, according to Manager Daniel Bloomfield of the Retail Trade Board, is only a minute from the Elevated lines. In addition, the Boston Elevated will soon inaugurate a six-cent bus line between the North Station and the retail district by way of Adams square, Federal street, Summer street, returning by way of Washington street.

Arrangements have been made by the board for the sale of books, each containing 25 storage coupons, at a special rate of 39 cents for all-day storage.

Thayer Sees Peril in Too Much Prosperity

New York, Nov. 18 (A.P.).—Emphasizing that there was more danger from too much prosperity than there would be from too little, H. E. Thayer, chairman of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company, sailed for Europe today confident of the healthy condition of business generally throughout the country, with no weak spots, which he expected to continue into the Spring.

There was an enormous amount of speculation, he said, but he did not think the country generally was over-speculative. He expected other Federal Reserve Banks to follow the example of the Boston and Cleveland institutions in raising their rediscount rates to 4 per cent.

Insurance Man Dies

Stricken in a store on Congress street, John P. Morgan, fifty-five, of No. 40 Brimfield road, Milton, died today of heart disease, on the way to Haymarket Relief Hospital. He was secretary of the Old Colony Insurance Company.

Lady Moire Bathurst of London, shown here, was injured severely when an automobile in which she and Charles D. Jackson were riding from Boston to New York crashed into a wall in Norwalk, Ct. She suffered three fractured ribs.

22 TECH MEN FLEE FIRE

Twenty-two building engineers, students of Technology, engineered a sleeping flight today from the Sigma Alpha Epsilon Fraternity House at No. 441 Beacon street when the attic was found to be on fire.

Although all twenty-two were asleep at the time the fire was first seen, the blaze is declared to have started from "careless smoking."

A cigarette flung aside at the reading hour by some student, is believed to have smoldered in the rear of a trunk on the fourth floor front. The students sleep in the fourth floor rear.

The alarm's first notification of the fire was when firemen jimmied the door downstairs and came racing to the top floor. The students went downstairs soon after, and in a hurry.

The blaze was confined to the one room with a damage of $1,500.

BALDWIN STANDS PAT ON SUBMARINE ABOLITION

London, Nov. 18.—The views of the British government, regarding abolition of submarines was clearly defined at the Washington disarmament conference and nothing has occurred since to alter these views, Premier Baldwin stated in the House of Commons this afternoon when questioned as to his policy concerning submarine disarmament.

The premier, though thus placing himself on record as favoring the abolition of submarines, did not venture to express an opinion as to whether a disarmament conference should be called now how to discuss the question.

Must Have Modesty at Any Price--Pope Pius

Washington, Nov. 18 (A.P.).—Catholic women in America were urged by Pope Pius to resist "indecent" fashions in women's dress in a message to the convention of the National Council of Catholic Women.

The message, read by Bishop Joseph Schrembs of Cleveland, declared that Christian women who dress immodestly "dishonor the name of Christian." Proper reverence to such holidays, it said, is sometimes lacking in the very places where it is most to be expected—Christian schools.

"Heads of these schools, it said, sometimes consider that it does not so much matter about modest fashions for women as that they will withdraw their daughters.

"Christian modesty in dress must be taught at any price," the message added. "Indeed, it is in the very name of humanity that it is necessary to fight for decency in dress."

shares. There was a rally in the last half hour.

From an opening at 225, or a light advance to 225½ and a decline to 215, Mack Trucks moved in a radius of 12½ points while Chrysler, Hudson, American Can, General Electric and Cast Iron Pipe were similarly unsettled. Speculative Wall Street concluded today that the Federal Reserve banks advance in its rediscount rate was inevitable, even though it might be delayed a week or more.

Mack Truck directors more than fulfilled expectations in ordering a 50 per cent stock dividend, and oil production showed another decline of 15,000 barrels daily.

Following a brief events around the noon hour, bearish traders launched another attack against the industrial specialty stocks, carrying such a volume of selling that prices tumbled from 5 to 15 points in representative stocks.

A decline in call loan rates from 5 to 4½ per cent, in this period was without effect. American Can, 2 down to 243 for a loss of 8 points; General Electric, off near 3; Chrysler Motor down 10½ at 167, and Truck down 5. U. S. Steel was over 3, but Baldwin 4 on its day's high, and Baldwin 4.

the various colleges to issue a warning.

"Any girl who attends the dance at the Copley-Plaza will meet with my disapproval," says the Dean at Simmons. "We may not take official action to expel her, but we will not approve of her actions.

"The stories our own girls have told us about the way these so-called college dances have been conducted have caused us to take action. We believe our girls will not attend knowing conditions to be such as they are."

The official order posted in the halls of Simmons reads:

"Students in Simmons College are requested not to attend this year or in the future the annual dance known as the Harvard-Yale dance. There is no doubt they are of questionable nature owing to the fact they are entirely open to the public."

There is no objection to students attending college dances the night of the Harvard-Yale clash at the Stadium if they are supervised by college officials, say the heads of the various girls' institutions.

The dance at the Copley-Plaza and one at Whitney Hall in Brookline are the targets at which the college deans aim their disapproval.

The Harvard Union dance, patronized exclusively by Harvard students, meets with the approval of the Simmons dean.

Only the dormitory girls at the College of Liberal Arts at Boston University have been warned against attending the dance. Lack of suitable chaperones is given as the cause for the ban at that college.

"It is a purely commercial enterprise and one which this college cannot give favorable mention. We advise students to attend college dances of their own that night," says a bulletin.

THREE DEAD IN FIRE AT N. Y. DOCTOR'S HOME

New York, Nov. 18 (A.P.).—A third death resulting from a fire that swept the apartment of Dr. Edward Leonard Bronson, a retired specialist in Forty-ninth street early today, was recorded this afternoon, when its secretary, Sybil Shipton, died in a hospital from burns. Dr. Bronson, who was about eighty years old and a graduate of Yale, died during the fire, and Miss Mary Sullivan, a servant, died later. Miss Mary Nalen's neck was severely burned, but she will recover.

and his physician, Dr. A. M. Cram of Bridgewater, said he did not regard his patient's condition as critical.

The Colonel had so far recovered by noon that he dressed himself and had lunch.

He told inquirers he felt materially better.

The present illness is a recurrence of an attack suffered last Spring, which was followed by an operation here that brought the President hurriedly to his father's bedside from the Summer White House at Swampscott.

Colonel Coolidge's condition is described by Dr. Cram as more serious than any heretofore observed and he has ordered absolute rest from all activities.

Later, it was learned, Dr. Cram had called the White House and given a report of his morning visit. It was understood that his information was substantially that which had been given out here.

TEA

is remarkable for its rich strength & delicious fragrance. 300 cups to the pound. Try it.

When it's Thanksgiving—and the teams are drawn up for battle on the gridiron—when the first touchdown goes over and the grandstands rock with frenzy —have a Camel!

Into the making of this one cigarette goes all of the ability of the world's largest organization of expert tobacco men. Nothing is too good for Camels. The choicest Turkish and domestic tobaccos. The most skilful blenders. The most scientific package. No other cigarette made is like Camels. No finer cigarette can be made. Camels are the overwhelming choice of experienced smokers.

WHEN the college bands are playing to make your blood tingle. And the cheers and answering songs sweep back and forth between the opposing thousands of rooters. When, following that tense hush, a swift player darts out from the flashing formations on the gridiron and races across the goal for the first touchdown—oh, man, or superman, when the taste of joy is too keen to endure—have a Camel!

For Camel is the boon companion of your joys. Roam as far as you will from the prosaic things of every day, Camel will be the truest smoke friend you ever had. Not a tired taste, not a cigaretty after-taste, not a regret in a million Camels! Just full and fragrant smoke contentment, just added zest in living.

So when your own college's team tears through for its first smashing goal this Thanksgiving Day—when life seems fullest of the frenzy of happiness—joyfully apply the fire and taste the smoke that's loved by millions.

Have a Camel!

Our highest wish, if you do not yet know Camel quality, is that you try them. We invite you to compare Camels with any cigarette made at any price.

By the Hand of God
A New Element
He Obeyed Mormon Joe
Babies in Trees

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1925, by The Star Co.

HARRISON W. NOEL, subnormal youth, aged twenty, ran away from an insane asylum, killed a taxicab driver and a little girl. The young man's lawyer told the jury that he was insane, "afflicted by the hand of God."

The jury decides that he was sufficiently sane to be killed by the electric chair. That will happen unless some higher authority changes the arrangement.

BIOLOGISTS will tell you that Providence does not deserve the horrible accusation, "afflicted by the hand of God," and common sense tells you that a just, omnipotent, merciful Being ruling the universe would not voluntarily "afflict" a boy of twenty with insanity, causing him to murder a man and little child that had done no wrong.

EVERYTHING in the visible universe from the egg of an oyster to the big star Aldebaran is made up of fewer than 100 different "elements" or substances.

A few are missing, and two scientists, Jaraslav Heyrovsky and Professor Dolejsek, announce the discovery of one more which they call "Dvimagan."

THAT NEW WORD, "Dvimagan," will live millions of years after every language now spoken shall have completely vanished from use and memory.

Knowledge and intellectual power are INTERNATIONAL, independent of race. It is well to remind the world, nursing its racial hatred, that the six greatest minds in mathematics and astronomy were born of six different races—Copernicus, a Pole; Tycho Brahe, a Dane of Swedish ancestry; Keppler, German; Galileo, Italian; Descartes, French; Newton, greatest of them all in pure mathematics, British.

THE LAW WORKS in different ways, even when you try to make it work all one way. While a moron escaped from the lunatic asylum is sentenced to death, Platt May, a Ute Indian, is acquitted of murder.

The Indian's wife died when the baby was seventeen days old, and the baby had pneumonia. The Indian tied the bodies of wife and baby together and buried them in the same grave, the baby alive.

Platt May was acquitted because a medicine man, "Mormon Joe," told him to do it, and he obeyed through fear. There was reason for fear. "Mormon Joe," while in jail, beat to death a fellow prisoner who spoke lightly of him.

THE REV. H. R. A. PHILIP, 20 years a Presbyterian minister at Tumu Tumu, in East Africa, says: "In the jungle, human babies learn to swing from tree to tree almost before they can crawl. I have seen convincing proof of the evolution theory many times among the wild tribes in East Africa."

YOU NEED NOT go to East Africa to see babies able to cling to a tree. Every baby, for a considerable time after birth, will easily support its weight clinging to your finger or to a small piece of wood.

Every mother knows how a small baby grasps the mother's hair and holds on. Evolutionists tell you that goes back to a time when the little monkey clung to the fur on its mother's chest, while the mother hopped from tree to tree.

THAT'S WHAT evolutionists say. Let us, however, not presume to form opinions, but let missionaries and the scientists deal with it.

ETHEL BUNNELL, a young girl in the University of Illinois, beat fifty-eight men in a cattle judging competition, and that isn't surprising.

Women had to be good judges of animals to exercise discretion in picking out their husbands. Nature has given them power to see clearly and form sound judgment at a glance.

Many a husband who thinks he did the picking was in reality the one picked by a natural born judge of live stock.

A NEW COMET is discovered in the Constellation of the Hunting Dog. It is a small comet. Fortunately, we have learned not to be afraid, even of big ones. We no longer ring church bells to frighten the comet away, as our ancestors did. We measure it, and catalogue it.

WE OUGHT to get on our knees and thank Heaven for that wonderful, greatest of all shock absorbers, our atmosphere. Scientists are surprised by a shower of meteors, unusual at this time of year.

They are supposed to be connected with the "Leonide" showers that bombard the earth once in 33 years. If it were not for our atmosphere's friction, which melts the meteors, great blocks of stone would bombard our earth and soon nobody would be left alive, to make observations or records.

Healthy Hair

Gleamy, Thick, Wavy
—Full of Life

Modern style in hair dress, particularly constant curling and waving, is slowly burning the color, lustre and very life from the hair, leaving it dry, faded, brittle, streaked with gray; often the hair roots shrink, then the hair falls out fast.

A 35-cent bottle of refreshing, fragrant "Danderine" will do wonders for any girl's hair. This vitalizing beauty-tonic acts on the hair like fresh showers of rain and sunshine act on vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates, nourishes and strengthens them, helping the hair to grow thick, healthy and luxuriant.

Try this for one week! While combing and dressing your hair, moisten your hair brush with a little "Danderine" and brush it through your hair—the effect is startling! Your hair immediately takes on new life and that healthy, youthful lustre, becomes incomparably soft, wavy and appears twice as thick and abundant.

ASKS MAYOR TO SEIZE POTATOES

State Senator William J. Francis of Charlestown believes Mayor Curley should take control of the potato situation here by appointing a potato commissioner to seize the supply now lying in the B. & M. yards and sell it to the people at reasonable prices.

Senator Francis wrote a letter urging such action be taken.

Senator Francis told the Mayor such action is authorized under the revised State laws, which provide the Mayor may appoint such an official, subject to the Civil Service Commission, and that city money can be used to supply food to citizens in an emergency.

There are at present 388 cars of potatoes in the yards, B. & M. officials announced today. The end of the embargo is not yet in sight, they said. A net reduction of 31 cars by unloadings and releases has been noted in the last twenty-four hours.

16 SHIPS OF POTATOES SENT TO FLOOD U. S.

Charlottetown, P. E. I., Nov. 18 (A.P.).—Potato shipments in large volume are being sent from this port day and night. Sixteen steamers already have taken 450,857 bushels for New York, Rhode Island, and Norfolk, Va. The steamer Tagland will sail Thursday for New York with 85,000 bushels. Hundreds of thousands of bushels have left the island by rail and sailing craft.

to enable men to buy clothing as they are accustomed to buying automobiles, furniture, radios, homes and real estate

The Continental takes pride in announcing that it is the first large clothing store in New England to offer to its customers and to those who will now become its customers, this plan for buying clothing on deferred payments. This plan has met with instant approval in other parts of the country, and is merely the extension to clothing of a credit service being used by men in all walks of life for the purchase of necessities and luxuries.

What Weekly Payment Plan Is

The Weekly Payment Plan enables responsible men to purchase fine clothing and pay for it out of their income—a moderate amount at time of purchase—the balance in ten weekly payments of equal amount.

We have investigated this plan in its operation in other industries, and where it has been used for the sale of clothing. We believe it is sound, sane and sensible.

Who is entitled to credit

The amount of your income has nothing to do with your credit standing at the Continental. Those of small salary are entitled to credit as much as those of large income.

Naturally we must investigate each account before it is opened, but responsibility will be used as a measure and not your income.

Hart Schaffner & Marx Clothes

may henceforth be bought on this new weekly payment plan, as well as the other lines of clothing sold in these stores. The plan should open the way for many who have never been able to enjoy the luxury of a Hart Schaffner & Marx garment to have such a suit or overcoat by paying for it as they wear it.

No added cost for this service

There are no interest or carrying charges for this service. Whether you choose to buy for cash, avail yourself of the Weekly Payment Plan, or maintain a regular charge account at the Continental, our prices are the same. ONE PRICE only and one price to all.

Any suit or overcoat in these stores may now be purchased on this plan

TO OUR OLD CUSTOMERS: This new plan does not affect the handling of your account in the usual way. No change in our present charge or cash business; only this additional service.

STATE WITNESS GOT DEATH THREATS

King Accuses Heintein at the Carbarn Murder Trial

Peter V. King, witness for the State against the four men on trial for their lives in connection with the Waltham carbarn robbery and murder, was threatened with death if he appeared against the defendants, according to his testimony given today before Judge Fosdick in Middlesex superior Court at East Cambridge.

King told how rude messages were received by the prisoners while on jail awaiting trial and testified that Edward C. Heintein, one of those indicted for murder, had come to his cell last Sunday and threatened him with death if he "opened my mouth."

Defence counsel introduced evidence to show that King has a criminal record which includes four indictments.

King denied immunity was offered him for his testimony for the State, stating he was testifying only to the truth.

The four men on trial are Edward C. Heintein, J. J. McLaughlin, J. J. Devereaux and Joseph H. Bennett. The murder indictment against King was not pressed under orders from District Attorney Arthur K. Reading, conducting the prosecution.

King testified that when the machine was Heintein, Devereaux, John J. and Peter McLaughlin, still a fugitives, and himself in it, arrived within 50 feet of the carbarn they all got out but himself. He said Heintein was the first to return to the machine, closely followed by John J. McLaughlin, who carried a white bag. Then came Peter McLaughlin. Heintein went after Devereaux, who had remained behind, and they returned together. King testified, and he said Devereaux had a gun in his hand.

Witness told of the drive away from the scene and said Heintein asked Devereaux what had kept him behind the others.

"I had an argument with a guy!" Devereaux answered, said King.

"Did you bump him off?" asked Heintein, according to the witness.

"No, I did not; I shot him in the leg," Devereaux replied, according to King.

Heintein then demanded: "Wasn't it understood there was to be no shooting under any circumstances?" said the witness, and added that Devereaux's reply was: "He was waving a lantern at me. I had to do something."

Arriving at Bennett's house, King said, Devereaux was first out of the machine, and asked "who has the rest of the guns?"

"How many have you got?" asked Peter McLaughlin, according to the witness.

"I have two," said Devereaux's alleged reply.

"If I have two," said Peter, according to King. He said that Heintein turned to John McLaughlin and said: "You'd better go with King. We'll see you later."

While the men were getting out the machine, King testified, Devereaux said to Heintein: "I broke the stock of your gun," and Heintein replied: "You'll have to buy me a new one."

Fat? Reduce by Dancing, Fay King Advises

DOING "THE SPLIT"
THE HAND STAND!
THE LONG WAISTED SHORT LEGGED GIRL HOPES TO KICK AS HIGH OVER HER HEAD AS THE SHORT WAISTED LONG LEGGED GIRL CAN—BUT IT "STANDS" TO REASON SHE NEVER WILL!
LEARNING TO BE A CHORUS GIRL
STRETCHING THE MUSCLES

By FAY KING

New York, Nov. 18.—It has always seemed to me that chorus girls must be born dancing and realize the way they do while illustrating the backgrounds of the beautiful musical shows.

But I have learned lately to my dismay that even the pretty chorus must pass through a stage of unsightly preparation far from the gay glitter of the footlights.

That is tucked away places in the theatrical district are schools I had never thought or heard of before, where, in amber little sateen practice suits, the embryonic chorus girl is put through paces and steps that correspond to the weary alphabets and tiresome scales.

But these are the fundamentals; and from these stretching exercises and simpler steps are built the complicated formations and fancy footwork that we applaud so heartily.

On the floor at one end of the schoolroom is a long mat; here each girl, in turn, takes her place, and, lying flat, her foot is taken in hand by one of the instructors and her leg is ground 'round and 'round to stretch the muscles and help the kick! Then she sits up and the instructor bends her back forward until her chin touched her toes. This stretches the back muscles. After a while they can do these stunts without the instructor lending a hand.

Which foot to start with and perfect time are other important factors in the school of professional dancing. And endurance, too. How out of breath the beginners are after five minutes of dancing. That must be overcome for future encores, when they ornament a show!

The hand stand, the split and many other edifying lessons the chorus curricula, and it's a wonder to me all their curves don't turn to callouses.

As far as I can see, a school for chorus girls could do more for fat women than a beauty parlor!

NEWTON MAN WINS FORTUNE IN FLORIDA

Louis B. Forte and Wife Paid $7,000 for Land Now Sold at $100,000

The Louis B. Fortes of Newton are today worth $100,000.

From a modest start gained by Forte when he was golf professional at the Brae Burn links at West Newton, Mr. and Mrs. Forte went to Florida where he continued to coach captains of industry in the ways of the mashie and the niblick. Mrs. Forte, formerly a school teacher in Waltham, was not content to be idle and acted as tutor to several children at Palm Beach.

The contacts afforded the couple in their daily tasks eventually led Mrs. Forte to induce her husband to invest $7,000 in a tract of land some eighteen miles from Palm Beach on the Miami highway. She had heard "something" which her business acumen and brains urged her to invest in.

Within a few weeks they were offered $10,000 for the tract. Mrs. Forte pleaded with her husband to hold on to the land, overcoming his disapproval of their flyer in real estate.

Several months later they heard that a group of wealthy men were seeking the site for a golf course.

"We were offered $75,000, but held off until this Fall, when we sold it for $100,000," said Mrs. Forte, with no trace of pride in her achievement.

The Fortes family resides in Washburn avenue, Newton. Forte is the son of a janitor of the police station there and is little changed by his sudden fortune.

$3,000,000 FIRE IN N. ORLEANS

New Orleans, La., Nov. 18 (A.P.)—Fire starting just before midnight last night, swept seven blocks of Mississippi River wharves before it was brought under control early today. Damage wrought was estimated at a minimum of $3,000,000. The Poydras and Girod Street docks, practically new structures, cost more than $1,000,000. These great sheds fell before the rush of the flames as did scores of freight cars.

Vessels in the stream near the docks were in danger from flying embers for a time, but were towed to safety. Only one vessel was tied up at the wharf, the Manila Maru, a coffee ship of Japanese registry. She was quickly cut loose and towed down the river.

SEC. WILBUR ACCUSED

downs for the sole purpose of modifying her testimony in order to absolve the navy of any blame for the crash that cost fourteen lives, Dr. Mason fairly shouted:

"I believe that Captain Foley was sent for by Secretary of the Navy, and that the Secretary was back of this.

"Foley came to see Mrs. Lansdowne to protect his chief. That was his duty."

Dr. Mason, however, admitted that he had neither witnesses nor anything more than what he had testified as evidence that Secretary Wilbur had sent Foley to his niece.

SINISTER MOTIVES.

Mason attributed "sinister motives" to Wilbur because he had "contradicted testimony by Mrs. Lansdowne."

"If you had known that a judge-advocate had to interview witnesses to determine whether their testimony was relevant, would that change your views?" asked Major Leonard.

"It would have alleviated my suspicions a great deal if I had known that," replied Mason. "But I thought at the time that Foley was trying to influence her testimony and subsequent events have strengthened that belief."

"What events?" demanded Leonard.

SAW PLOT AGAINST HER.

"Because a week or two later Foley and the Secretary of the Navy seized upon the first opportunity to impeach Mrs. Lansdowne's testimony."

"What else?"

"Because the court called back Mrs. Lansdowne to testify after this controversy between herself and Foley, when it was proper that she only tell what she knew about the loss of the Shenandoah.

"Mrs. Lansdowne was perfectly satisfied with the conduct of this court until Foley dug up a magazine article by Captain Lansdowne with a view to making Mrs. Lanadowne appear as having uttered mis-statements."

MRS. STEELE CONTRADICTS.

Mrs. Mason corroborated the impressions her husband said he gained from the interview.

Mrs. George W. Steele, wife of the commander of the Lakehurst air station, testified that she was the bearer of Foley's memorandum to Mrs. Lansdowne.

"I got the paper in this room. I saw Captain Foley and told him I was going to accompany Mrs. Lansdowne to the stand the next day. He told me he had seen Mrs. Lansdowne the night before, and that he had received the impression she was not going to say the things she did after the accident.

"I told her that Foley said it was along the lines of what he understood she wanted to say.

"It was offered for her assistance, which she could use or not, as she saw fit.

"There was no question of signature. It was merely a guide to help her write her own statement if she wished. Mrs. Lansdowne understood that fully. It was a friendly conversation and she thanked me and kissed me when I left. There was no attempt to influence her. Rather, it was to help her an dth esaid she appreciated it."

METEORITE IN MILFORD, N. H.

Milford, N. H., Nov. 18 (A.P.)—The meteorite, the fall of which startled many persons in Southern New Hampshire Sunday, was found in a field owned by Sheriff James P. Cassidy.

It had driven a hole four feet into the ground. While only about as large as a flattened baseball, there were numerous bits of slag broken off at the point of impact with the earth.

Near the spot was a distinct odor of sulphur.

Close Up Views and Board of Governors of Lucerne-in-Maine

Bathing Golf Log Lodges

The Plan

The plan and development of Lucerne - in - Maine from its inception has been under the personal supervision of Charles B. Breed, a Boston engineer of national reputation and a member of the faculty of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. It is Professor Breed's idea to make Lucerne-in-Maine a natural country club community of log lodges—the most beautiful as well as the most unique in America.

PROF. CHARLES B. BREED

A large corps of engineers and surveyors under the direction of David L. Nason, former City Engineer of Biddeford, has been for months laying out streets, mapping the sites for an 18-hole golf course, an airplane field, parks and community recreation buildings as well as utilizing the natural gravity running water system and high power electric current running through the property.

The future development and maintenance of Lucerne-in-Maine is now in the hands of a Board of Governors of which Professor Breed is a member.

Where—What—How to Get There

Location—In Hancock County, Maine, on the Lafayette National Highway and Maine Central Railroad, 12 miles south-east of Bangor, 35 miles north-west of Bar Harbor.

Size—7,000 acres of beautiful wooded hills, pine groves and lakes, high above sea level. There are five lakes on the property, the largest, Phillips Lake, a great granite bowl with clean beaches and 12 miles of shore line. There are also natural sites for a modern club house, 18-hole golf course and an airplane field.

Transportation—The main motor highways and railroad lines from New York and Boston to Bar Harbor run directly to Lucerne-in-Maine. Good bus service connects with fast steamships from Boston.

These Men Know!

HON. CHARLES D. CROSBY, Mayor of Bangor, says: "To my mind, Phillips Lake is the most beautiful lake in Maine."

HON. ELMER E. PATTEN, President of the Chamber of Commerce of Bangor, says: "No claim as to the beauties of Phillips Lake could be exaggerated."

HORACE STEWART, President of Bangor Rotary Club, says: "The word lovely does not commence to describe the natural beauty of Phillips Lake and its environs."

HON. RAYMOND FELLOWS, Attorney-General of the State of Maine, says: "In beauty Phillips Lake rivals the lakes of Switzerland and the lochs of Scotland."

HON. PASCAL P. GILMORE, ex-treasurer of the State of Maine, says: "Such a beautiful sheet of water, walled in by rugged mountains, must naturally be associated with much that is romantic."

The Board of Governors of Lucerne-in-Maine

DR. HAROLD S. BOARDMAN, Orono, Me., Acting President of the University of Maine.

HON. A. E. FARNSWORTH, Ellsworth, Me., President of the Liberty National Bank.

PROF. CHARLES B. BREED, Boston, Mass., Faculty Member of the Massachusetts Inst. of Technology.

HON. I. K. STETSON, Bangor, Me., President of the First National Bank.

HON. ARTHUR G. STAPLES, Lewiston, Me., Editor of the Lewiston Journal.

DR. ELMER E. PATTEN, Bangor, Me., President of the Chamber of Commerce.

EDWARD M. GRAHAM, Bangor, Me., President of the Bangor Hydro-Electric Co.

COL. JAMES M. GILLEN, Bangor, Me., Counselor-at-law.

HON. GUY E. TORREY, Bar Harbor, Me., Member of Gov. Brewster's State of Maine Council.

From the Press!

THE PORTLAND PRESS HERALD says: "Not in the history of all Maine so far as we are aware has there been undertaken a development enterprise of the magnitude of that which is about to be launched at Lucerne-in-Maine."

THE BOSTON TRANSCRIPT says: "One of Maine's most beautiful regions is Phillips Lake on the main highway between Bangor and Bar Harbor."

BANGOR DAILY NEWS says: "Phillips Lake will be most aptly known in the future as Lucerne-in-Maine, a descriptive name that is peculiarly appropriate."

BANGOR DAILY COMMERCIAL says: "Lucerne-in-Maine is the name by which Phillips Lake will hereafter be known—a particularly appropriate name for this beautiful spot."

What You Get for $98.60—$25 Down—$5 per Month

A 2000 sq. ft. lot.

A Good Investment

GOV. RALPH O. BREWSTER

HON. RALPH O. BREWSTER, Governor of Maine, in an address at Bar Harbor, on July 3, 1925, said: "Maine is bound to grow because it offers an unsurpassed investment opportunity for healthful outdoor recreation at all seasons of the year which the world is learning more and more to seek. On every hand we see evidence of this awakening. Prudent purchases of Maine real estate are investments that yield abundant returns both in healthful living and that normal natural increase of values that result from the ever broadening interest in our State. Participation in this growth, in Lucerne County."

SHENANDOAH WAS DOOMED, EXPERT SAYS

Washington, Nov. 18 (A.P.)—Shadows of the Navy's Shenandoah court of inquiry overcast the Mitchell court-martial today when Representative Frank R. Reid, counsel for Colonel Mitchell, asked that the court-martial call to the attention of President Coolidge the Shenandoah court's "high-handed procedure."

The court-martial was informed that Major Frank M. Kennedy, ordered to testify before it today, had been subpoenaed also by the Navy court and had been threatened with contempt proceedings if he did not respond to the Navy's summons.

Major Kennedy refused to accept the navy subpoena and was ordered by the army tribunal to hold himself available for testimony before it.

Anton Heinen, the German Zeppelin expert, testified before the court-martial that reduction in the number of automatic valves on the Shenandoah from eighteen to eight reduced the safety of the dirigible from 100 per cent to zero.

In his opinion, Heinen said, the American crew did not take sufficient instruction from German experts.

Major Kennedy, who has charge of lighter than air activities at Mitchel Field, Hazlton, O., was called as the second witness. He was questioned about many technical details of aviation.

The Major also related his experience as an American inspector at the Zeppelin plant during construction of the Los Angeles. He supported Colonel Mitchell's charge that the use of calcium chloride as a non-freezing solution in the radiators of the Shenandoah's motors had a destructive effect on the dirigible's framework. He testified also that the Shenandoah was overweight.

Benefit Player

FRED HILLIBRAND

An opportunity to see all the theatrical stars now in Boston appearing in the same performance will be given on Friday afternoon when the Theatre Treasurers' Club holds its annual benefit show.

On the program there appears the name of every prominent player in the city and the list of features offers a splendid variety of novel entertainment.

De Wolf Hopper, of "The Student Prince," will be master of ceremonies.

Appearing on the stage in the many elaborate acts there will be Fred Stone and his daughter, Dorothy Stone, George Herman, De Haven & Nice & Company, Irving Berlin, the Marx brothers, the Tiller Sunshine Girls, the Heidelberg Quartette, Joe Bonomo, Fenway Variety Band, Francis Wilson, Fred Hillebrand, Grace Hayes, Frank Gaby, the Paloma Orchestra, the Knickerbocker Quartette, the Ted Marcus artists from "The School for Scandal," artists from B. F. Keith's and other vaudeville houses, Phil White from the famous comedy, "Abie's Irish Rose," George Hale, Murray and Maddox and Brian O'Nell.

Veterans of the theatre declare that never before has such an array of talent been arranged for a benefit performance.

PONZI CALLS GASTON STORY 'UNTRUE'

Jacksonville, Fla., Nov. 18 (I.N.S.)—The Florida press has scored a victory over Charles Ponzi, the erstwhile "financial wizard" of Boston.

With an air of disgust, after he had been grilled by newspapermen for several days regarding his rumored connections with Eastern capitalists, Ponzi today emphatically denied that he was being backed by Eastern capital in his Florida campaign for "rehabilitation" and handed International News Service copies of telegrams which he said were exchanged between himself and "William Gaston of Boston," last July, and to which he attributed the rumors that have caused no little confusion in Jacksonville realty circles.

SHOWS TELEGRAMS.

"If those will quiet these rumors, take them," declared Ponzi. "I have shown these to two or three persons here, who perhaps they have broadcast the false rumors that Gaston and his associates are backing me.

"But please let it be known that I have come down here to fight this battle alone and I feel confident of victory."

Ponzi came to Florida to stage a come-back after serving a sentence in the penitentiary on conviction of using the mails to defraud in connection with his international reply coupon fiasco in Boston, in 1920.

FLOWING PICTURE.

The telegrams, one of which was signed "William Gaston" and the others just signed the initials "W. G." painted a glowing picture of the money to be made in the "exclusive" Florida syndicate and urged that Ponzi raise more than $5,000 "Italian money" and get into it with himself and friends. The telegrams were sent from Palm Beach and said: "Wire me immediately if interested in care of H. S. Vanderbilt."

"Syndicate expects to make seven to one within six months, which is conservative profit here now," the first message, dated July 22, said. The second message, dated July 23, said: "Details not out yet, but involves big sum and large tract resulting in virtual monopoly of certain section."

Gaston Doesn't Know Ponzi; Never Sent Him Telegrams

Col. William A. Gaston, when advised that telegrams were being shown in Florida by Charles Ponzi bearing the signature "William Gaston," replied "You may say for me that I do not know the man, never have met him nor seen him and I am not interested in him.

"My only interest in Southern real estate is in Kelsey City, Fla., bought some years ago through Mr. Kelsey, former head of the now Waldorf Lunch System."

Ponzi's Wife Sobs as She Pleads With Fuller

Mrs. Rose Ponzi of Strathmore road, Brighton, girl wife of the former "get-rich-quick wizard," in a tearful plea to Governor Fuller at the State House today urged the executive to call a halt to the proposed move of District Attorney O'Brien's staff to bring Ponzi back from Florida as a Superior Court defaulter.

Ponzi's appeal to the Supreme Court, after his conviction as a common and notorious thief, is pending and his counsel, Attorney William H. Lewis, is strenuously opposing the move to bring him back here until the higher court is prepared to consider his appeal.

Between sobs Mrs. Ponzi told Governor Fuller that her husband is engaged in Florida real estate promotions for the sole purpose of amassing funds sufficient to pay off his former customers who lost millions by investing in his "fifty per cent. in 45 days" scheme.

Governor Fuller informed Mrs. Ponzi he was powerless to intercede. He suggested that she confer with District Attorney O'Brien.

With tears in her eyes, the little wife of the one-time millionaire promoter, left the executive chamber in the company of two friends. She appeared careworn and nervous and her modest hat and coat and well-worn dress contrasted strongly with those "fur and diamond" days of the past.

LAMONTS AND REDMONDS FACE TRIAL TOMORROW

A motion to dismiss indictments against George F. Redmond, treasurer of the defunct brokerage house bearing his name; James R. Lamont, president of the concern, and their wives, Mrs. Mildred Redmond and Mrs. Grace L. Lamont, on charges of conspiracy to convert and conceal assets in connection with bankruptcy proceedings was overruled in a decision handed down today by Federal Judge James M. Morton in the United States District Court here. The cases is scheduled to go to trial tomorrow before Judge Morton and a jury. Redmond and Lamont are in East Cambridge jail in default of $25,000 bail each. Mrs. Lamont and Mrs. Redmond are free under bail of $10,000 and $5,000, respectively.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

French-American Bud Has Brilliant Coming Out Party at Club on Beacon Hill

IN A PRETTY FROCK OF white tulle and white satin done in large petals to resemble the fleur de lys of France, Miss Dolores Dedon de Pierrefeu, daughter of Mrs. Joseph Daniels Leland, was brilliantly launched on local social seas by way of a large dance preceded by a dinner at the Republican Woman's Club on Beacon Hill.

A SPECIALLY LOVELY frock for a bud was this creation, poised over crisp taffeta of pale new-leaf green. Mrs. Leland was a picturesque and stately figure in a Moyenage costume of periwinkle blue, and she and her daughter made a distinguished pair to receive the scores of guests.

THIRTY-TWO GIRLS and their gallants, all prominent in the social swirl, were dinner guests, the Misses Henrietta Sedgwick, Susan Cabot, Eleanor Frothingham, Helga Gray, Peggy Howe, Ruth Hayden, Sarah Dodge, Anne Tudor, Helen Seymour, Elizabeth Converse and Frederika Warner.

ALSO THE MISSES Nancy Morison, Anne Wentworth, Mary Hubbard, and Messrs. Richard Sanger, Eliot Codman, Roland Lee, Turner Wells, Edward White, Robert Soutter, Donald Murchie, Alexander Shaw, Wilmer Pleasants, Alexander McKay Smith, Henry Warner, Philip Fitzgerald, Moorfield Storey, Erlund Field and Tudor Simpkins.

ALTOGETHER IT WAS a festal young set evening; two of these merry groups gathered about hospitable boards by Mrs. Augustine Parker (the former Mrs. Percy Haughton) and Mrs. Alfred Rodman Weld.

MISS DE PIERREFEU is a notable addition to Boston's debutante circles—with her own background of French-American ancestry and life abroad—and her mother's picturesque career, both here and in France. The bud's late father was the Count de Pierrefeu, whose life was lost in the World War.

BORN A TUDOR, the Countess electrified her aristocratic family and connection by an essay into professional life, via the path of aesthetic dancing, before it was the thing for society to dally with the stage and trade.

VALIANT SERVICE in French hospitals was the Countess' portion during the World War, in which the Count served with the Tricolor. Becoming Mrs. Joseph Leland finally brought the former Elsa Tudor back to her Boston environment, much to the rejoicing of hosts of friends.

MR. AND MRS. EDWARD C. STREETER'S, tea in honor of their debutante daughter, Miss Helen Streeter, was a high light in bud affairs and brought many guests to the Beacon street home of the Streeters to meet the young girl. Of course there were the usual accompaniments of music and dancing, and buds in the tea room.

FOURTEEN GIRLS of the season assembled about the candle-lighted tables, gubled in their hospitalities by two charming members of last year's set—Miss Margaret Warner, daughter of the Henry E. Warners, and Miss Juliet E. Greene, daughter of Mrs. Bertram W. B. Greene.

A WEALTH OF BLOSSOMS were sent Miss Streeter in token of her coming out—and these were ranked in profuse array everywhere about the rooms—a fragrant background for guests and for the bud and her mother in the receiving line. Mrs. Streeter wore a gown of rich blue brocade, touched with gold.

THE BUD WAS GOWNED in a robe de style done by Lanvin in white crepe with embroideries of silver. It was a portrait frock, following old Florentine lines, with fingertip sleeves and long round skirt—all in the happiest sartorial vein of the master Frenchman.

SPEAKING OF FROCKS, Lady Diana Manners in blonde caracul with matching cloth frock and small chaneau was the observed of all observers at the Copley-Plaza when celebrities of various kinds graced the honor table and the professional women played the hosts.

NEARBY WAS MISS IRIS TREE, a trim figure in frock cloth topped by a small felt hat and scarf of the new vivid lip-stick red sponsored by those who determine what's newest and smart for the wardrobe of feminine lights, debutantes, society matrons and stage celebrities.

GREAT CAST IN 'SCHOOL FOR SCANDAL'

Revival of Sheridan's Rollicking Comedy at Hollis an Artistic Success

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

THE days were jolly and intriguing when Sheridan wrote "The School for Scandal," and if the present flare for Eighteenth Century comedy does nothing more than half satisfy an anxious theatrical appetite George C. Tyler's presentation at the Hollis easily pays for its passage.

More than a year ago, with something of a yearning to make proper tribute to Sheridan and his works, Mr. Tyler cast an impressive production of "The Rivals" upon an expectant public. It was a rare success—whether expected or not. Encouraged by all that then happened, the intrepid Tyler has this season given his thoughts and his talents to "The School for Scandal," a frolicking comedy that has served both actor and producer on many occasions since the days of our own lively revolution against the British Empire.

As disclosed at the Hollis "The School for Scandal" emphasizes that all of the smart attainments and brisk dialogue of the theatre were not discovered by the playwright who toils on a writing machine under an electric light. The quill and candle of Sheridan's day furnished its own inspiration.

An imposing group of players, drilled to the last dying note and striding step, are making the presentation at the Hollis something to be mentioned only in the best of artistic company. In these days of fluff, froth and frolic the dignity of acting must necessarily have its own sturdy supporters, and Mr. Tyler has seen to it that no auspicious glances may be cast upon this particular version of Sheridan's spirited old play.

Old friends make their appearance in new roles—or, rather, old roles take on new pleasures with new interpretaeurs. There is, for instance, O. P. Heggie, tried and true in admirable characterizations of many varieties, strutting about as Sir Peter Teazle—and he is no disappointment.

For other joys you have Julia Hoyt as Lady Sneerwell, and May Collins as Lady Teazle—fair players, who know their trade and meet them with sincerity. Then, too, you meet once again Henrietta Crosman, queen of many plays of other years, whose Mrs. Candour more than holds its own with the parade of good acting that fills the comedy.

Each succeeding year brings its own fling at revivals, renovations and adaptations; old plays are turned into musical concoctions, nearly forgotten operettas are revised to match the current rage for saxophone and banjo. "The School for Scandal" remains untainted through 150 years—a comedy fit for any taste.

Opera Her Goal

BABETTE BELLOFF

From Syracuse, famous as the home of the Shuberts, Edna May, and other theatrical notables, comes black-eyed Babette Belloff, whose impressive dramatic soprano is a feature of the chorus in "The Student Prince" at the Shubert.

Beside this duty in the memorable "Student Prince" ensemble she understudies the role of Gretchen and hopes that by some chance before the Boston engagement is over she will have an opportunity to show local audiences how she has profited by her studies at the New England Conservatory of Music. The daughter of a prosperous clothing manufacturer, she opted for a stage career with grand opera as her goal and obtained the parental consent to come to Boston in 1921 for vocal culture.

It is quite possible that Miss Belloff may be selected for the London production of "The Student Prince."

HIGH SCHOOL GIRLS IN REUNION FRIDAY NIGHT

The annual reunion of the Girls' High School Association will be held in the school on Friday evening, Miss Elizabeth B. Nichols, the president, will preside. Guests will include Head Master John E. and Mrs. Denham, Orien Smith and Mrs. Jennie Lollman Barron, newly elected member of the school committee. There will be dancing in the gymnasium and an opportunity to purchase tickets for t. H. S. night at the Copley Theatre, December 9, the proceeds of which will go toward the new $3,000 scholarship fund.

INSTRUCTION, NOT SHOW, OBJECT OF FOGG MUSEUM

Harvard's neg Fogg Art Museum is not to be a store merely for exhibition purposes. "We intend that instruction will be primarily our object at the ne wmuseum," said Director E. W. Forbes today. "That and not display is the keynote of the new museum." The structure is now under construction at Quincy street and roadway, Cambridge.

POST AUXILIARY WHIST TO AID HOSPITAL FUND

The Herbert J. Wolf Post Auxiliary, No. 134, V. F. W., of Dorchester will give its annual whist party for the boys at the West Roxbury Hospital. Refreshments will be served and prizes be awarded. Mrs. Ethel Abrams, chairman, is assisted by a committee.

Telepathy Play 'As He Thinketh' Is Copley Hit

Some interesting theories on thought transference, demonstrated by practical hypnotism, form the gist of "As He Thinketh," the third play in the special matinee series at the Copley Theatre.

No matter how your sentiments on mental telepathy may run, you will find that the author, Frances A. F. Saltonstall of Boston, has built an absorbing play around a compelling subject and has created novel characters.

Particular credit is due the cast for a deft performance of such a talky play. Elspeth Dudgeon made of Mrs. Townsend an outstanding character. Messrs. Tandy and Mowbray handled their roles with skill. Miss Standing had little else to do than be generally charming—not at all a difficult task in her case.

SMITH COLLEGE GIRLS TO ACT ON HUB STAGE

In dramatic circles at Smith College there is great excitement. For the first time in years a student dramatic organization is to give a play outside Northampton. The Theatre Workshop, founded seven years ago on the model of the former "47 Workshop" at Harvard and Radcliffe, but as a part of the academic course financed by the trustees, is to compete in the Massachusetts little theatre tournament now under way at the Fine Arts Theatre. A bill of four experimental one-act plays is being given at the college. The most finished of these, as regards acting, scenery and dressing will be brought to Boston Friday and performed as the first play of that evening's tournament bill at the Fine Arts Theatre.

Over 2,000 women, members of the Florence Crittenton Circles, are interesting themselves in the annual bazaar held by the league at the Copley-Plaza this year on Wednesday and Thursday, Nov. 18 and 19. This year it has several new features.

The first afternoon will be a large bridge party in the foyer under the auspices of Mr. Malcolm B. French and the first evening and second afternoon also in the foyer will be a fashion show with members of the Boston Junior League appearing as models with Miss Carolyn Towle in charge of them.

Jordan Marsh Company is to furnish all of the clothes modeled by the Junior League girls.

After the fashion show there is to be concert given by Miss Hazel Clarke, violinist; Miss Marjorie Peaselt and Miss Edith Noyes Greene, president of the Music Lovers Club and ex-president of the McDowell Club, composer and pianist will play a group of numbers with Miss Clarke.

Altogether there are to be 22 tables with various interesting features of their own, the Medford Circle under the chairmanship of Mrs. Robert N. Gooch, is having a cushion shop and Mr. A. J. Baldini of Weston, is lending them some very interesting pieces of early American antiques as a back ground for their pillows, etc.

The Arlington Table is having two interesting new features, one a zoo of animals made of felt and other materials.

Lady" who will be covered with They are also having the "Holder" tea holders, each for 10 cents apiece.

KIP VOWED TO WIN ALICE WHEN PARENTS TRIED TO END ROMANCE

Above picture is a graphic portrayal of a daily scene in court house at White Plains, N. Y., where Leonard Kip Rhinelander is seeking annulment of his marriage to Alice Jones Rhinelander on the grounds that she deceived him as to her race and color. The bride denies any attempt at duplicity.

HIS LONELY HEART IS 'CHEERED FOREVER' BY GIRL'S LOVE CALL

Rhinelander was on a long tour at his father's orders.

One paragraph said:

"Learning in your letter that I needn't worry any longer, I set my heart at rest and will carry me on, no matter how long the fight lasts."

"What fight were you having?" asked Mr. Davis, being educated," answered Rhinelander.

"Forcibly separated by you, father?" "Yes," was the reply.

HIS LOVE "NEVER STRONGER."

"You meant that you were going to fight to marry her when you were twenty-one?"

"I had visions of it," responded the witness.

The last paragraph of the long letter which told of his trip read:

"Well, Alice, I am going to close, but before I end I want to tell you one thing, and I want you to read it over when you are lonely—you can trust me, Alice, to be true to you, now and always. My love for you has never been greater, stronger, broader, deeper and more to be relied upon, and as the days go on it will continue to be just the same."

Again turning to the question of whether Leonard had any suspicion that his wife had negro blood before he married her, Davis asked, "What color was Alice's body?"

Young Rhinelander, stammering and blushing, said that her arms were no darker than those of women he had seen in Havana. Davis then asked:

"Her color, coupled with your having met her father, did not arouse any suspicion?" "No."

KIP'S ANSWERS CONFLICT.

"During the time you were out West did you have any suspicion?"

"No." This answer was in direct contradiction to Leonard's answer to the same question yesterday.

"You never gave it a thought until after you married her?" "No." This also was a direct contradiction.

"From 1921 to the time that you read the newspaper accounts of your wedding in 1924, you had no suspicion." "No." This was a third contradiction to previous answers.

"Are you color blind." "No," answered the witness.

"Can you distinguish brown from white?" "Yes."

"Was you brain working all right when you married her?" "Yes."

Reverting to the part that Leon R. Jacobs, attorney for Philip Rhinelander, Leonard's father, was playing in the suit, Mr. Davis brought out that young Rhinelander had not seen his father since last April "because Mr. Jacobs doesn't sleep so well."

Yesterday, Rhinelander testified that he had spent most of the time during the past few months in various company.

DEAR MAMMA AND PAPA.

Under a second fire of questions, Rhinelander admitted that he had taken Alice on a trip through New England in August, 1924, a few months before their marriage, telling his parents that a "Mr. and Mrs. Jones" were going along as chaperones.

"Were there any such persons as Mr. and Mrs. Mathews?" asked Davis. "No," said young Rhinelander.

Mr. Davis then produced a letter written by Leonard to Mr. and Mrs. Jones telling of the trip through New England in which he addressed them as "Dear Mamma and Papa." In the course of the letter they were "Mr. and Mrs. Mathews are certainly enjoying the scenery."

"Were you, the descendant of Mrs. Jones, this motherly little white woman?" asked Davis. "Yes," admitted Rhinelander in a low voice.

PLEDGE OF LOVE.

Reverting to the long letter written from the Grand Union Hotel, Davis quoted many fervid protestations of love.

"Haven't I proved my loyalty to you and haven't I shown what you mean to me and will mean in the future?" wrote Leonard.

"Alice dear, you want me to come back to you and God knows I would give anything if I were able to, but, darling, as I am not yet in a position to say what I want to do again flushing.

"Don't you think you were deceiving your father as to your plans?"

"Yes," was the reply.

"Did you ever deceive anybody else?" "Never to my recollection."

"Do you realize how important it is—this question of deception on your part in the suit in which you are charging someone else with deception?" he said Rhinelander again flushing.

"CHEERED BY HER LOVE.

Your letter darling, was just full of pictures, if you understand what I mean. It brought back memories of the good old days when you and I were so happy together. Yes, dear girl, as you said very few people are as happy as we have been and when you told me our happiness will always continue as far as your part is concerned, I am going to add here that you can rely on me to do my share and forget everything, no matter what it may be, come between us.

Well, darling, to get back to where I was saying, maybe you thought so, I will try to explain what I was referring to. Two things, sweetheart, in your letters stood out like a shining light above all the other nice sayings you told me.

Can you guess what those two things were, that you wrote me and told me yourself—of course, you know, dear, what you said: —"That I am now your on'y one and that you will be true to me." Oh! Alice, dear, I was worrying a little not hearing a word for three weeks and wondering if you were keeping your promise.

You can't blame me Alice, sweetheart, when I am feeling blue, lonely, and lonesome to think if you are being true and having me as your only one. Can you, dear?

LETTER ENDED HIS WORRIES.

When you are alone and perhaps and therefore, must do as I am told at present.

"But, sweetheart, it won't remain that way always. No, when I become of age and can do what I like, I will never leave you and we can be together just as long as you want me.

"It's hard, dear, but remember, Alice, what I said about playing the game, fighting the battle until it is over and carrying on to the end."

"Were you contemplating marriage when you wrote this?" asked Davis. "I was willing up to it," admitted Rhinelander.

WAS SHOCKED BY GIRLS.

After finishing this letter, Mr. Davis took up one written from Bermuda on the same trip. In it Rhinelander spoke of the man traveling with him at the request of the elder Rhinelander to keep an eye on him.

"This companion, Leonard said, know many girls in Bermuda.

"He introduced me to about fifteen," he wrote, "but these girls evoke in me bubble parties and drink like fish and they sometimes disgust me."

You were shocked at these society girls drinking until they became tight," said Davis. "Did it shock your sense of refinement to register at the Hotel Marie Antoinette with a woman who was not your wife?"

The witness reddened again at mention of the Hotel and Leonard and Alice had spent several weeks at the hotel before their marriage.

"No," he answered with difficulty.

LACKED HER "LIVING FIRE."

Again Davis read from the letter: "Alice, these girls all lack the qualities and living fire which only you possess," and asked, "did you want your father to hear of your contemplated marriage to Alice?" "No," said Rhinelander.

"Were you ashamed of this marriage?" "No, I wasn't," came the answer.

"Did you ever deceive anybody else?" "Never to my recollection."

"Do you realize how important it is—this question of deception on your part in the suit in which you are charging someone else with deception?" he said Rhinelander again flushing.

"CHEERED BY HER LOVE.

Your letter darling, was just full of pictures, if you understand what I mean. It brought back memories of the good old days when you and I were so happy together. Yes, dear girl, as you said very few people are as happy as we have been and when you told me our happiness will always continue as far as your part is concerned, I am going to add here that you can rely on me to do my share and forget everything, no matter what it may be, come between us.

You can't blame me Alice, sweetheart, when I am feeling blue, lonely, and lonesome to think if you are being true and having me as your only one. Can you, dear?

LETTER ENDED HIS WORRIES.

When you are alone and perhaps during the Summer when everybody is going to dances, parties, and having a jolly time, you, no doubt, will feel very lonesome and unhappy and will say to yourself, "I wonder if Leonard is keeping his promise and being true to me."

You can't help but think that, dear, its only natural. I will admit myself that many a night I stayed in while my pal was out to dinners and dances. I laid in bed and thought if you, love one, were staying in also and giving me all parting, like I am doing and above all, being true. During all the times that I have been away I have always trusted you, Alice, and have been doing so all along, but just think, dear, when your letter arrived and you told me yourself in your own hand-writing that you will be true to your boy and now love only me.

Oh, Oh God, Alice, you have no idea when your letter came to me and all the cheery things that were in it. Perhaps that letter will be the only one that I will get during all these long months, but dear girl, if it's the only one I need not worry any more if you are keeping your promise.

Need I remind you to yourself sweetheart, that you will be faithful for ever and have only me maybe I will hear you when you answer the above questions.

Well, old scout, I hope I am not writing too much and not tiring your beautiful brown eyes, because I will end here if I am. Do you really want me to close and say good-bye till my next letter or shall I continue?

COULD WRITE "ON FOREVER."

I have so many things to say and feel like writing this morning that I could keep on forever, I wonder why it is, dear, that sometimes my pen goes right along without hardly stopping and other times it takes me hours to write one little page.

All now—we know why it is, if not, I will tell you the secret. It is because of that letter Alice which you wrote me. I have it right before me on the desk and every time I look at it it gives me new ideas and urges me on. That's the reason, love, that this morning my heart is overflowing with thoughts and my mind is on this letter.

When your letters used to arrive in Washington, I really didn't half know what it was to get them, but now when I can't hear from you, I fully appreciate what each one meant.

I would sit down after receiving them and could write hour after hour telling you all the things I had done and how awfully glad I was to hear from you again. Yes, dear heart, those days when I was in Washington, D. C., are gone and now I can't tell all you how glad I am, when your letter arrives, because no letters come to me from my little girl.

However, darling, one did and I am typing my utmost to tell you what that one letter is going to do for me during all these long months.

THANKS HER FOR PANSIES.

Whenever I am feeling very depressed and all hope seems gone, I will take out that letter and read over some of the loving stories, which your little hand has written upon these blank pages.

And when my eyes fall upon those outstanding words, which say "You are now my only one and I will be true to you, Leonard, forever," just those few words, darling girl, are enough to cheer me up again and give me courage, strength and hope to carry on and see it through.

Alice dear, I want to thank you again for those two sweet pansies and the palm-cross, which also remind me of you, because your loving lips have kissed each one. You asked me to take good care of them and love each one. Yes, dear, your boy has them in his pocket, all the time and will carry them around wherever he may go.

I have kissed them, too, and thought while doing so, that I was kissing your own sweet lips. You also have two roses which you said you have pressed and I have two pansies. Let us see, sweetheart, when I return to you if you still have the roses and I the pansies. You are unable to write to me, it's true, but you said you have again begun your diary and are putting everything you do in it.

WILL "BATTLE FOR LOVE."

Yes, loved one, although I won't know all the things you've done and how you have been, as you said you can write in your dairy and let me see it when I go home—is finished. When you get my letters, postcards, and souvenirs, put it down in your book and say if you were glad to hear from me and if my letters cheered you up.

Put everything down, Alice, because I want to know all you do and how much you missed your boy. In your letter, darling, you said not to forget you and to be square and fair with you, because you were being true to me. Let me tell you, loved one, I will never forget you, dear, for you are always in my mind day and night, because my heart is just longing to be with you again and hold you in my arms.

Yes love, to tell how much I love you and how unhappy your boy has been all these days and weeks. If I were with you sweetheart, you would be nice to me and let me show you with my warm lips and my caresses how I love you. Oh! Alice as you said, life is not worth living if the one you love is far away. It is hard, dear, very hard, and you and I can fight the battle. No matter how long it takes, for our love for each other cannot be broken. Can it, dear?

PRAYS SHE 'WON'T FORGET.'

Of course, it may be a long, long time before we see each other again, but do you think as the weeks pass on and even months, that that will make me forget you. Oh, love, do not for one moment think that time will have anything to do with my forgetting you. No, darling, you ought to know me better than that. Haven't I proven my loyalty to you and haven't I shown what you mean to me and will mean in the future?

Alice, dear, you said you have never loved me more than you do now and have never missed me as much. Yes, love, but as the time rolls on, won't I gradually be forgotten and then you finally won't miss me at all?

Oh you won't forget me and you must miss me just as much in August or September as you do now. Say you won't forget, dear, and as time passes by I will still be as close to your lonely heart as I am now.

It's mighty near 2 o'clock now, dear,

"I'll Fight on Until You're Mine," Kip Wrote Girl in 17-Page Letter

White Plains, N. Y., Nov. 18.—Here's a letter Kip Rhinelander wrote to "My Darling Girl" from over cheerful hotel stationery just as he was about to leave Cedar Rapids, Panama City. Can you imagine Alice, love, how happy and surprised your boy was to hear from you again?

Well, dear, after reading your wonderful letter, I went straight down to the writing room and hurried off a few lines just to let you know your letter had found its way to the one you had sent it. Yes, I was leaving in a half hour so I had to make the best of my time.

Oh dear heart, that letter didn't half express my great joy and gladness and how efficiently I felt when yours arrived. I wonder sweetheart, when my lovely letters reach, if you go to your little room where you can be alone and are as happy to hear from me as I was when that letter of yours came to me.

"TURNS NIGHT INTO DAY."

If you really care as much to get my letters as I did hearing from you, you no doubt, can appreciate what a ir note meant to me and how happy and overjoyed I was. Supposing, darling, you hadn't heard from me for three weeks and wasn't sure if you would even get a letter for six months, and then as if a gift from God a letter arrived.

How would you feel?—well, Alice if you can answer that question and if you have been as lonely and lonesome for me as I have been for you, why you won't have the least trouble in guessing how I felt when your letter came. Just to know, dear, that you wrote it was enough to turn night time into day time, but after reading and repeating your words, phrases, clauses, and sentences and finally coming to the point that has been worrying me a great deal and learning in your letter that I needn't worry any longer, set my heart at rest and will carry me on no matter how long the fight lasts.

I honest, Alice, if you think I am running off with somebody you're referring to in the above sentence. I don't blame you, love one, for becoming a bit confused, as I will grant you it is quite difficult to see what I really have in mind.

CHEERED BY HER LOVE.

Your letter darling, was just full of pictures, if you understand what I mean. It brought back memories of the good old days when you and I were so happy together. Yes, dear girl, as you said very few people are as happy as we have been and when you told me our happiness will always continue as far as your part is concerned, I am going to add here that you can rely on me to do my share and forget everything, no matter what it may be, come between us.

Kip Wooed His Bride With Kisses of Sheik

[illegible] You sweet girl, you never forget your boy, do you? I am so glad you have had the victrola fixed and now you can play it when you come home in the evenings. Do all our old records sound the same, dear, and when you play them I wonder if you think of your boy? How many times you and I have heard [illegible] Those were happy days, weren't they? I know how we used to enjoy [illegible]

Yes, darling, take good care of our old records, because all those pieces which I gave you have been our favorites and I treasure them very much. You, no doubt, have bought many new ones, and during the Summer you will probably add a great deal to our collection, but I know you won't care to hear the new ones as much as our old favorites.

WOOED HER LIKE SHEIK.

When you play new records they won't have the same meaning as the ones which you and I have heard together. They can't sound the same, and I know you would rather hear the ones you and I played so often. Just for example, during supposing you play a [illegible] and I [illegible] before [illegible] to look at the stars and think those very same ones are shining over you. I just dose off with you on my mind and wonder if you are thinking of me, too. There isn't a night that passes, darling, that your boy doesn't say a prayer for your safety and to keep you well and strong.

I hope you don't forget to pray [illegible] before [illegible] Now, [illegible] me, dear, [illegible] under your [illegible]

PICTURE UNDER PILLOW.

I wish dear girl I have put your picture in my watch and keep also with yours under my [illegible] me if I [illegible] to bed. Well, I am [illegible] I should be [illegible] you will be the first [illegible] about it.

You don't know when we [illegible] but how much I [illegible] I am always [illegible] I just wrote [illegible] all right. When [illegible] I had a [illegible] to get to New [illegible] I knew you wanted me [illegible] didn't I, dear?

Well Alice, remember if ever I am taken seriously ill I will only want you, dear lover, to be with me, because you are the only one I care for and nothing else matters.

Don't let's talk about those things [illegible] Old saying goes [illegible] the bridge until you come to it. However, I just wanted you to know if anything [illegible] happen to me, I only want you to be with me.

NO LETTERS IN SEASICK.

Of course my address here, I believe, is on the first or second [illegible] but we sail for San [illegible] I don't know about [illegible] but I'll be sure you [illegible] hear from me for about a [illegible] I will write on the ocean [illegible] four days and [illegible] letter to [illegible] That is to be sure, I [illegible] a whole month [illegible] but I'll write [illegible] mention sent with your [illegible] has [illegible] to who during the month of May.

So, love, while I am on the steamer I will write a few lines every day, that is, if I am not seasick, and will mail the letter when I reach San Francisco.

Now I have not forgotten to [illegible] I shall [illegible] my [illegible] the steamer may leave for New York about every four or five days, and it takes almost two weeks for the letters to go from here to Pelham.

No sweetheart of mine, your boy would not go as often as the steamers leave for New York, and will never forget his little girl in Pelham.

Have you received all my other letters, dear? This is my eleventh, so you should have gotten ten before this. By the way, dear, I wonder if you received the handkerchiefs which I sent from Havana? There was the package I told you about in one of my letters I sent you.

WANTED LETTERS GUARDED.

I have decided to ask you safely, because I thought they were quite pretty. I know you would like them. Alice, dear, keep all my letters locked up in your strong box, because they are only for you to read and hope they cheer you a little bit.

You dear blessed girl, what a model you are, and what a shock your boy just had. You, no doubt, are wondering what on earth I can mean and thinking I have had an electric shock.

No dear, after I had finished page No. 14 I went to the desk to get some stamps and while waiting there the clerk passed me if I was Mr Rademaker. "Well," he said, "there is a letter for you forwarded from the Washington, which have just arrived."

Really, Alice, I was nearly taken off my feet when I saw your handwriting and the postmark of Pelham Manor. Your loving boy, now and always, LEONARD.

GOOD FELLOWS, HERE'S YOUR BEST CHANCE!

Think of Out-of-Luck Children and Take Santa's Role!

Rally round Nov. 18, I Dennis! You're offered the chance of a lifetime to play Santa Claus to some luckless children or to some unfortunate family.

Will you be a personal good St Nick to help some worried kids out of the prospect of a blue Christmas rather than a white?

The Boston Evening American offers a plan whereby you can be a personal Santa Claus and live and [illegible] into homes, hearts, hopes and happiness at distant junctions indeed.

Less than six weeks remain before Christmas with all [illegible] going down upon [illegible] soon also, but in these [illegible] ten upon those not so well [illegible] with it's worthy good.

You need not be rich [illegible] yourself as a Xmas fellow as personal Santa Claus to [illegible] but over that required for your own needs is sufficient to cause an endless kid carol letting you and you will be happier for [illegible] the doing.

Here is the plan of the Boston Evening American:

CHRISTMAS LONGING.

From day to day this newspaper will publish letters from children who write of their Christmas needs and longings—and many of them the faint hope of having the needs filled or the longings satisfied.

All you have to do is write the Good Fellow Editor of the Boston Evening American for the names and addresses of one or more of these for which you want to be a Santa Claus.

Or you may write to the Good Fellow Editor stating that you want to be Santa Claus to some needy family and children and you will be furnished with a case to take care of yourself, and by your own methods.

The Good Fellow Editor aims to give each Good Fellow a case which he or she can handle with ease and facility.

Here are some of the many letters received:

Dear Editor, I am afraid that Santa won't come to my house for Christmas because he forgot me last time. I am dying for a sewing doll and doll bed. Please tell Santa because I read the ad was coming. I have no father my mother has to support me.

R K

Dear Editor, I am thirteen years old. My father is dead nearly nine years. My two girls are sick. There is nine of us. I have a sister in the hospital. I live a mile with three cases. I am sick and can't go to school. I love school but on account of being sick so much I miss a great deal. I know my brothers do everything they can for me. We are not expecting anything for Xmas unless Santa thinks of us. There is sickness all the time so you see how hard it would be for mother to get me anything. Dear [illegible] will come to our house and see for yourself. I will be very thankful to you for anything you will send us. I am always your little friend Minnie L.

Dear Santa Claus, I wish you would come to my house. I have five brothers and we won't have a dime if you don't come. In my behind I left the stove hot open so if I go step on it will get it all right. I have four brothers and mama is sick and I wonder could you send some pants. I am in the second grade. We need underwear so bad. Anything anyway will be fine. We [illegible] some children when our father was around. This was seven years ago and Santa don't forget us what we want. I will be a good boy and I will watch for you. I am eight years old.

ALVAH.

Dear Santa Claus—I hope you know where I live. You did not come to our house last year and I listened all night for you. My sister wrote you lots of letters. Please [illegible] a box of candy and bring to us my little baby brother and don't forget my mother. I ring her a box of candy and something to my two sisters. I won't write you any more if you don't come this year. I hope you have a very happy Christmas.

MAXIM SAILS TO GET ALE AND STOUT

New York, Nov. 17 (A.P.)—Dr and Mrs Hiram Maxim sailed today for their first trip abroad in 26 years, and one of the chief reasons for the trip, the aged inventor said, was to get some ale and stout. Dr. Maxim attributed a pamphlet against prohibition.

"We will have to invent a new human race if prohibition is to be enforced," he said. "And that new race will have to be aided and abetted by the Anti-Saloon League. Enforcement of prohibition is enforcement of a crime," said the inventor.

ITALIAN LAW TO HAVE "SEVEN LEAGUE BOOTS"

Rome, Nov. 18 (A.P.)—Italians abroad who commit any act leading to disturbances in Italy or damaging the prestige of the Italian nation will be subject to loss of citizenship under a proposed law introduced in the Chamber of Deputies today.

Dear Evening American, I [illegible] Santa Claus [illegible] out over that required for your own needs is sufficient to cause an endless kid carol letting you and you will be happier for [illegible] the doing.

Here is the plan of the Boston Evening American:

CHRISTMAS LONGING.

From day to day this newspaper will publish letters from children who write of their Christmas needs and longings—and many of them the faint hope of having the needs filled or the longings satisfied.

All you have to do is write the Good Fellow Editor of the Boston Evening American for the names and addresses of one or more of these for which you want to be a Santa Claus.

Or you may write to the Good Fellow Editor stating that you want to be Santa Claus to some needy family and children and you will be furnished with a case to take care of yourself, and by your own methods.

The Good Fellow Editor aims to give each Good Fellow a case which he or she can handle with ease and facility.

Here are some of the many letters received:

AN OLD RECIPE TO DARKEN HAIR

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Turns Hair Dark and Glossy

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and gloss to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago this was the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" and you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients, for only 50 cents. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.

A Girl's Soul Stirs and She Wonders Why; Going Out Into the World to Learn of Love

Nancy, posed by Lucienne Hervol of The Student Prince Company

Nancy looked at herself in the glass. She drew back. It was the man who had accosted her in the Rue de la Paix.

FANCY HAWTHORNE, motherless, lives in an English country village with her father. She has an experience with Curly Collins, a country boy she has befriended. She discusses what occurs with her father. Then comes a strange stirring and she decides to see the world. In Paris she meets Cornelia Evans, daughter of an American millionaire. The girls form a studio partnership. Cornelia writes her brother, Lloyd, and his Oxford chum, Bob Whittaker, to visit them.

CHAPTER 9

Copyright, 1924-1925, by A. Hamilton Gibbs

NANCY made Cornelia her study after they began their student life. After many nights, when they had talked into the small hours, she began to find out that Cornelia was a combination of sophistication and ingenuousness. Her experience, ranging from the questionable advantages of an expensive finishing school to the outwearing of the delights of being a courted debutante in New York, followed by several months of comparative freedom in Paris, had made only surface impressions. She apparently knew everything, and that first-hand; but it was untested, unanalyzed, and therefore valueless. Like the unassembled pieces of a jigsaw puzzle. She still lacked the quality of perception which would make the pieces interlock and give a coherent whole. She had no good, cutter mental or spiritual. She kept dead day as a complete unit, delightfully unconcerned as to what might run on, or what life was all about.

Now [illegible] I'll wonder if she was happy then? It seems [illegible] that no one [illegible] shows [illegible] she was [illegible] Summer [illegible] the [illegible] [illegible]

THE HELPING HAND

Behind in Rent

Helping Hand Editor:

I have eight children, girls 15, large for her age), 13, 12, 7 and 2, and boys 8 (large for age), 6 and 5. Girls need shoes, sizes 2, 5 and 5, and boys 12, 8 and 9. My husband is not working and I am behind in my rent, and the children have no Winter clothes. I haven't any covering for my beds and we are obliged to cover with old coats; I would also like some clothes for myself, size 42, shoes 5. I hope some kind readers will take pity on me and help me out. MRS. E. R.

Feel Splendid! Nicest Laxative, "Cascarets" 10c

Don't stay headachy, dizzy, billious, constipated, sick!

One or two pleasant candy-like "Cascarets" taken any time will mildly stimulate your liver and start your bowels. Then you will both look and feel clean, sweet and refreshed. Your head will be clear, stomach sweet, tongue pink and your skin rosy.

Because "Cascarets" never gripe or sicken, it has become the largest selling laxative in the world.

Needs Warm Clothes

Helping Hand Editor:

Would you be kind enough to try and get me some warm clothes and coats for my children. I have seven girls, ages 16, 13, 12, 9, 6, 4 and 2. They take shoes 6, 5, 1, 12, 10, 7 and 4 and two boys 17 and 15 years, who take shoes size 5½. My husband is not working and needs an overcoat, size 38, so he will be warm looking for work. The oldest boy makes only $8 a week, which does not go far after paying carfares. I have just come from the hospital, so cannot go to work to help out any. I can make over anything, and if I am not asking too much would like a coat for myself, size 40. MRS. M. J.

Others In Need.

M. E. C. asks for clothing for two boys 11 and 12. Has eight other children and would appreciate toys and dolls for them. Husband a Spanish-American War veteran. They were recently burned out.

Mrs. M. E. C. would appreciate a baby carriage. She has ten children, two of which cannot walk.

Mrs. N. H. appeals for clothes for boys 14 and 13 and 4, girl 10, and baby 1 year old. Husband hurt six weeks ago and has not worked since.

Mrs. M. H. would like to get a sewing machine from some kind reader who has one to dispose of. Could pay a few dollars for it.

Mrs. A. A. writes husband is sick and out of work, and little girl 3, and baby three months need clothing badly. Can make over anything.

Mrs. L. D., old lady, whose husband has had three shocks and whose only help, a daughter, has been sick two months, appeals for aid.

Mrs. H. R. appeals for blankets, etc. Using old rugs on the children's bed. Mill where husband works is closed down.

Kathleen—oldest of nine children—writes she is working as her father has no steady job and she goes to night school trying to prepare for office work. Would be grateful if some kind reader would give or loan her an old typewriter, so she could gain speed by practising at home.

FOXY GRANDPA'S BEDTIME STORY

BOBBY THOUGHT HE'D FOUND A BIRD'S NEST.

By Foxy Grandpa

"I'M certainly glad we came to these islands, Foxy Grandpa," said Bobby. "But that was a funny little ship we came over from Java on, wasn't it?"

"It certainly was," I agreed, "but when you come to out-of-the-way places like these Cocos Islands, you have to expect to travel on small vessels."

"Kind of one-cylinder," I thought. "Something like Robert Fulton's Clermont, I'll bet."

We were out in a wood on one of these oriental islands while this conversation went on and Bobby and Bunny had been scurrying all around exploring this new country. Suddenly Bobby's little forehead wrinkled up and he said:

"Foxy Grandpa, do you know something? This is a strange place and different from anywhere we have ever been, but do you realize we haven't seen anything extraordinary in the animal line?"

"I had thought of that, Bobby," I answered, "but look up there in that tree-top."

"A big bird's nest!" exclaimed Bobby. "Perhaps it's some kind of a strange bird."

We kept our eyes on the nest for a while, hoping to see some beautiful tropical bird fly out of it. But nothing happened. Finally Bobby's curiosity got the best of him and he said:

"What do you think of my climbing that tree and seeing what's in it?"

"No objections at all, Bobby," I replied. "But be very careful not to frighten the inmates—if you find any."

"Oh, I'm always careful about that, Foxy Grandpa."

Bobby was on the first limb of the tree before you could say "Jack Robinson," and in a little while he was far up in the tree, signalling me that he was all right. But of course he didn't make any unnecessary noise, for fear of frightening the birds which he expected to find.

Bunny cocked one ear to the side and commented very quietly:

"I don't think Bobby will find any birds in that nest."

"Eggs?" I asked.

"Hardly," answered Bunny, stroking his whiskers, but not volunteering any further information.

We waited. On and on up and up, Bobby climbed. I was standing right under the tree now, looking up to see what Bobby would do.

Now I saw him raise himself up over the nest, bend his head slowly and look into it. Then he gave an awful scream, and I want to tell you that Bobby came down out of that tree as quickly as you ever saw any monkey come down a stick.

When he had landed safely on the ground and caught his breath, I asked him what under the sun had frightened him so. Must have been some strange kind of a bird, surely.

"Foxy Grandpa," said Bobby, not entirely recovered from his fright, "I had such a scare. I never had such a surprise in all my life. Do you know what I found in that nest?"

"That's what I'm waiting to hear," I said.

"A whole family of great big rats—rats in a tree! And the mother rat showed her teeth at me and was ready to bite me."

"Evidently your dispositions are the same the world over," said Bunny, shivering with disgust.

THE EQUITABLE TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK, Trustee

As a sinking fund the Company will agree to retire not less than $300,000 principal amount of Notes, and/or deposit sufficient cash for that purpose with the Trustee, on or before May 1 and November 1 in each year, beginning on November 1, 1926, and will agree to retire at least 60% of the issue by maturity.

Copies of a letter in reference to this issue from Mr. Thomas H. McInnerney, President of the Company, may be obtained from the undersigned upon request. Mr. McInnerney has summarized this letter in part as follows:

HISTORY AND BUSINESS

Since its incorporation in 1923, National Dairy Products Corporation has acquired directly or through its subsidiaries practically all of the common stocks or assets of more than seventeen ice cream and/or milk companies, including recently all of the preferred and common stocks of the Supplee-Wills-Jones Milk Company of Philadelphia, the largest milk distributor in the Philadelphia district and one of the most important ice cream companies in that city. Of the other subsidiaries of National Dairy Products Corporation, Rieck-McJunkin Dairy Company is the largest milk and ice cream company in the Pittsburgh district, and Hydrox Corporation is the largest ice cream company in the Chicago district.

The Company has now contracted to purchase approximately 84% of the common stock of Sheffield Farms Company, Inc., as well as 89% of the common stock interest of Sheffield By-Products Company, Inc. in the hands of the public, and 84% of that of Sheffield Condensed Milk Company, Inc. National Dairy Products Corporation is offering an opportunity to the holders of the remaining common stock of these three companies to sell their holdings, and these stocks together with the issue of its own common stock will be sufficient to enable it to acquire all of the common stock of these three companies on the terms offered.

Sheffield Farms Company, Inc., is one of the largest distributors of milk and dairy products in the United States, operating 1,991 delivery routes primarily in New York City. It owns complete facilities for collecting milk from five different states and operates a total of 14 pasteurizing and bottling plants. It also operates 313 retail grocery stores in New York, selling a general line of groceries as well as dairy products. The value at which the assets of Sheffield Farms Company, Inc., and subsidiary are carried on the balance sheet is, in the opinion of its President, considerably below the value at which such assets would appear on re-appraisal.

MANAGEMENT

The management of Sheffield Farms Company, Inc., will continue in charge of Mr. Loton Horton, President of the company, and he and his associates are becoming stockholders of National Dairy Products Corporation.

SECURITY

These Notes will be secured by the pledge of all of the stocks of the Company's subsidiaries now owned, as well as common stocks now under contract to be hereafter acquired of the three Sheffield companies. The Company will covenant that it will not permit any of its subsidiary companies, the stocks of which are to be pledged to secure these Notes, or any present subsidiary of any of such companies, to have mortgages on real property in excess of the aggregate amount of such mortgages now outstanding, except purchase money mortgages, and then existing mortgages on property purchased, and the renewal or refunding of such mortgages or liens, unless pledged under the indenture securing these Notes.

SALES AND PROFITS

As certified by Messrs. Price, Waterhouse & Co., Public Accountants, the combined net sales and net profits of National Dairy Products Corporation, its subsidiaries and sub-subsidiaries and Sheffield Farms Company, Inc., and subsidiary and Sheffield Condensed Milk Company, Inc., and Sheffield By-Products Co., Inc., after deducting ample allowance for depreciation of physical property, interest (other than on this issue of Notes), Federal income taxes paid, dividends on the preferred stocks of the above companies as at August 31, 1925 now in the hands of the public and the proportion of such profits applicable to minority common stock holdings of subsidiary and sub-subsidiary companies (including as a deduction the proportion of the profits of the Sheffield companies applicable to the stock not under contract for purchase) for the three years and eight months ended August 31, 1925, have been as follows:

Years Ended December 31st	Net Sales	Net Profits as defined above	Number Times Interest on Notes Earned
1923*	$71,777,276.34	$2,585,683.13	2.8
1923*	82,305,613.14	4,047,134.80	4.4
1924	88,096,845.07	4,635,180.05	5.1
8 months ended August 31, 1925†	67,582,218.63	4,446,688.94	7.4

* Figures for two small sub-subsidiaries not included in 1923, as they are unavailable.

† Includes net sales and net profits of Rieck-McJunkin Dairy Company and subsidiaries for nine months only, due to a change in its fiscal year.

In respect to National Dairy Products Corporation, its subsidiaries and sub-subsidiaries (other than Supplee-Wills-Jones Milk Company), the eight months' profits are the Company's figures and have not been audited.

On the basis of the present price of National Dairy Products Corporation common stock, the equity junior to these Notes represented by the common stock to be outstanding after this financing and the contemplated acquisitions, will have a market value in excess of $50,000,000. In addition the $6,924,400 par value of Preferred Stock just issued represents a further equity junior to these Notes.

ASSETS AND BALANCE SHEET

The books and accounts of National Dairy Products Corporation, its subsidiaries and sub-subsidiaries have been audited by Messrs. Price, Waterhouse & Co., Public Accountants, up to December 31, 1924 (except Supplee-Wills-Jones Milk Company, which has been audited up to August 31, 1925) and those of the three Sheffield companies up to August 31, 1925. The consolidated balance sheet of the above companies as of August 31, 1925, prepared by Price, Waterhouse & Co., from their audits and, in respect to National Dairy Products Corporation, its subsidiaries and sub-subsidiaries (other than Supplee-Wills-Jones Milk Company) from company figures, shows net tangible assets applicable to these Notes amounting to $30,557,686.11. The balance sheet after giving effect to this financing and is based on the assumption that National Dairy Products Corporation will acquire the entire outstanding common stocks of the three Sheffield companies. National Dairy Products Corporation will have cash with respect to the remaining common stocks of the three Sheffield companies which it does not acquire.

The Company agrees to make application in due course to list these Notes on the New York Stock Exchange.

Price 98½ and accrued interest, to yield about 6.15%

This offering is made in all respects when, as and if issued and accepted by us and subject to the approval of Messrs. Sullivan & Cromwell, of New York. We reserve the right to reject any and all subscriptions in whole or in part, to allot less than the amount applied for and to close the subscription books at any time without notice.

It is expected that delivery of temporary notes or interim receipts will be made on or about December 2, 1925, at the office of Goldman, Sachs & Co., 30 Pine St., New York, N. Y., against payment therefor in New York funds.

Dawes' Attempt Iniquitous

Would Make the Senate Subservient to the Rule of the President

Vice President Dawes was picturesque but hardly persuasive in his speech at New York.

The Senate rules are not iniquitous, but the attempt of Mr. Dawes so to change them as to make the Senate subservient to the rule of the President is distinctly iniquitous.

The autocratic wing of the Republican party, which Mr. Dawes represents—not very ably, perhaps, but very enthusiastically—is opposed to anything except autocratic rule.

This Government was not constructed to develop autocratic rule. In fact, it was mainly constructed to prevent such rule. The various limitations on the powers of the Chief Executive were intended to prevent an autocracy.

The specific definition of the powers of Congress was especially intended to prevent an autocracy.

The functions of the three departments of government, the legislative, judicial and executive, were so defined as to prevent the untimely invasion of the rights of one by another, and particularly to prevent the invasion of popular rights by the usual historical concentration of power in the hands of the Executive.

Notwithstanding all these precautions, the legislative branch of government, which is distinctly the popular branch, has been gradually encroached upon by the other departments of government and there is a continued effort to encroach upon this popular branch more and more.

The Supreme Court has assumed the right to nullify the acts of Congress, and there is no power provided by which Congress can overrule the decisions of the Supreme Court as they can overrule the veto of the Executive.

The Executive has acquired more and more power over Congress through his control of the patronage and the dependence of the members of Congress on the patronage.

Therefore, the balance of power between the three departments of government, so carefully devised by the founders of our nation and the creators of our Constitution, has been dangerously disturbed.

It is the popular branch of our Government which has lost independence. It is the rights of the people which have been invaded and restricted.

There is no wisdom, there is no patriotism in further limiting the independence of the legislative branch of the Government.

The Senate rules give the Senate the opportunity to exercise to a certain extent the independence they were supposed to exercise, the independence which the founders of the Government intended them to exercise.

The Senate's independence should not be abridged. In fact, the effort of the people of the United States should be to restore to the representative legislative branch of the Government the powers and independence which have been largely taken away from it.

There should be constitutional amendments to enable Congress to override the veto of the Supreme Court, just as it can override the veto of the President.

Furthermore, the power of distributing the patronage should be taken away from the President. It is too largely used for the sole purpose of cowing Congressmen.

The patronage can be better and more safely distributed by a committee of Congress.

Telling the World

Maine Finds Profit in Publicity

If New England was a little late in joining the grand national chorus of boosters, if, indeed, these Six States did not begin to go in for helpful publicity until they virtually were driven to it, there are signs that we mean to make up for lost time.

Discovering that their lovely town in two months last Summer was visited by more than 18,000 persons, the Commercial Club of St. Johnsbury, Vermont, will undertake to double or even treble the number. Editor Herbert A. Smith of the Caledonian Record will prepare an attractive booklet, "All About St. Johnsbury." St. Johnsbury has snow whenever there is any and the Winter Sports club is getting the municipal skating rink ready and strengthening its toboggan chutes.

Even our own Plymouth is determined to "capitalize but not commercialize" its historic assets. Spurred by the energetic George F. Washburn, who is certain that a little touch of the Florida spirit will help the Pilgrim town, the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce will spend $25,000 on booklets and folders. A replica of the Mayflower, afloat in Plymouth harbor throughout the Summer, is under consideration. Schools and teachers throughout the country are "forever" asking Plymouth for pictures and information. Hereafter, the beautiful old town will be better prepared for these requests.

And then there is Maine, first of the Northern States to awaken to the new order of things. How much did Maine spend this past year for publicity? Perhaps about $75,000. With what result? "Hotels and Summer boarding-houses throughout Maine did at least 25 per cent. more business."

Is Maine ready to continue the campaign for more business? Most assuredly; the prospect appears to be that the Pine Tree State next year will spend more than $100,000.

It calls for no special gifts of prophecy to forecast today that the Summer of 1926 will witness such activity in New England real estate, and especially "resort" real estate, or recreational real estate, as has not been seen heretofore. The days immediately ahead promise to be bright gold.

Peaceful South America

An Example for the Rest of Us

President Coolidge called attention the other day to the fact that South America has been "the example to the rest of mankind," as it has known less of war and more of peace than any other country during recent years.

Our notion of South America is that it is constantly being torn by revolution and upheaval.

It is refreshing to know that our neighbor is considered a peaceful one by such an excellent authority.

In the progress of civilization and in the complicated processes of one nation's dealing with another, South America seems to be an example for the rest of us.

MEDBURY SAYS—

By John P. Medbury

SOME men can be President of the United States, lots of them can build railroads and others succeed in breaking Wall Street, but it takes a smart man to sell a woman a pair of shoes.

HE has to be a diplomat. When a dame asks for a number five, he smiles and tells her that she could probably wear a size smaller and then goes to the case and pulls out a number seven.

WHEN it comes to feet, he has to use his head.

THE average woman doesn't think a shoe fits her unless it hurts.

SHE knows it can't be the right size as long as it's comfortable.

WHEN there's no pain, there can be no style.

HER motto is "If the shoe fits, try on a smaller pair.

SHE likes the shoe to pinch her foot because it feels so good when she takes it off.

ONE woman had so many corns that there was no room in the slipper for her foot.

SHE said she didn't care how many buttons she had because they were inside of her stocking where they didn't show.

IF IT wasn't for callouses, the taxicab companies would go bankrupt.

CORNS are their bread and butter.

LISTEN, WORLD!

Reg. U. S. Patent Office.

By Elsie Robinson

A SPANISH lesson, two Bridge Clubs, a lunch with Ethel, a matinee with Jane, two lessons in French and a manicure, gymnasium, a dance at the Inn and a lecture in the Auditorium, committee meetings on this and conferences on that, three books to review and two papers to write—

This, says Mrs. Searl, is a small part of her work.

And in addition to this there is her regular work as housewife and mother.

She has told me all about it in a long, hectic letter which you're positive was interrupted by a dozen phone calls. As you read, you get a picture of the pretty, petulant writer, with her charming home and devoted family. A delightful picture! So modern! So progressive!

Then you listen a little harder and you hear the lady pant.

She is panting because it's so hard to Keep Up With It All. And yet she must Keep Up With It All, because No One Would Dream Of Doing Anything Else Nowadays.

She is very sorry for herself as she thinks how tired she is, how nervous, how hurried and worried and hustled about.

But it's plain that she's also proud of herself:

She feels that she is quite the Livest Wire in her crowd.

I am a business woman—and also a home woman. I know how necessary it is for both the business woman and the home woman to keep up vital contracts with the world of affairs.

But I do NOT believe that the sort of "vital contracts" listed in Mrs. Searl's programme are a bar more elevating or intelligent than the little tattle of the rocking chair brigade of grandma's day.

I do NOT think that all these meetings and conferences and lectures and reviews are necessary or admirable.

I THINK THEY'RE MOSTLY BLAH.

It's still possible for the business person to construct a sane healthy program. JUST SAY YOU WON'T GO. THEN DON'T GO. There's the whole solution to the problem.

But how many of us want a solution to the problem?

It's so much more fun to imagine that we're the hub of the universe and go whirling 'round and 'round and 'round.

MEDITATIONS OF A WIFE

By Helen Rowland.

A KISS is the Esperanto of love.

Save your husband's pennies—and his golf, poker and income tax will take care of the dollars.

Whether you believe that your husband could get any woman on earth, or NO woman on earth, it is dangerous to dare him.

Helen Rowland

Before marriage, a man telephones a girl to find out what she is doing—after marriage, he telephones her to tell her what he is NOT going to do.

A husband is a rock of strength on which to lean—but there are times when he seems more like a pebble in the shoe.

That is a woman's darkest moment, when her vanity has been stung and she feels as though she could soak up a barrel of applesauce—and, some nice man comes along and offers her "advice."

* * *

Given good raw material, a woman can make a fair husband out of almost any mere bachelor; but no woman can make a bad man good, a weak man strong, or a playboy serious.

* * *

A man may admit that he is both handsome and brilliant—but he never suspects a pretty girl of having real brains, because he can't believe that nature could be so generous to a mere woman.

TROUBLE WITH OUR INTERNATIONALISM

By DR. FRANK CRANE

THERE has been a great deal of talk going on since the War about internationalism.

We have endeavored to create internationalism at the top; that is, on the basis of our ideals.

The real internationalism, however, is at the bottom, on the basis of our common humanity.

For instance, disease is international.

It makes no difference to a germ or a microbe whether he crosses the national line or not.

Most of the diseases come from the tropics and spread their contagious way through civilization.

It is interesting to note the work of the Rockefeller Foundation in this respect.

It recognizes no boundaries and nations, but helps them all indiscriminately.

Norman Hapgood says, "Disease travels, in ways long mysterious, from continent to continent. In every part of the world the Institute has its agencies of information and when it sees a work that needs help it gives that help."

Mr. Hapgood was writing about the help the Rockefeller Institute has given in Jugo-Slavia.

Dr. Stampar of that country had founded institutions all over the land—some one hundred and sixty-six centres of progress. He has been very influential in combating malaria which has taken a terrible toll of human life in Jugo-Slavia. The Rockefeller Institute heard of his work and has been backing him solidly ever since.

The Rockefeller Institute contributes some $300,000 a year, or 40 per cent. of the expenses, to the health work of the League of Nations. It is operating everywhere, in China as well as in the United States, and it is entirely removed from politics, and knows no basis but humanity.

How Mr. Rockefeller made his money is a subject of dispute, but there is no doubt that he is spending it in a way which no government would dare to follow.

Like the Red Cross, wherever there is necessity there the Institute seems to go with its helpful donations.

DAYLIGHT SAVING IN THE WINTER

By Garrett P. Serviss,
Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

WHY is "daylight saving" practised only when the daylight is longest and abandoned when daylight is shortest? One might become a "doctor" by means of a sufficiently "right" treatment of that question. But there is involved in it a great deal of human nature, which often kicks over the traces if driven in harness. It is better not to be over methodical with Nature.

Instead of trying to give a formal solution to the question, let us set forth the principal facts concerning it in a graphic way, and ask readers to amuse their minds with them.

It happens because of the departure of the earth's axis from perpendicularity to the plane of its orbit around the sun that we are blessed with the alternation of Winter and Summer, this alternation being accompanied with a shortening of the days and a lengthening of the nights in Winter and a lengthening of the days and a shortening of the nights in Summer.

Now, as everybody knows, one manifestation of modern thrift is daylight saving. Public conscience is aghast at the waste of the blessed sunshine—which comes so inconvenitently early on Summer mornings!

Clock Slaves

So, inasmuch as modern ways have made us all slaves of the clock, which has usurped the place of the sun in the eyes of the majority, we have lately been commanded by law to set our timepieces one hour ahead when the days lengthen in order that we may believe that the sun is an hour higher than he really is, and so be induced to tumble out of bed before the last of the morning birds has sought shelter from the midday heat.

By virtue of the same law, and the same servility toward the clock, we bring on an imaginary noon at 11 a. m. and stretch out the afternoon, with its play spells, until it is two hours longer than the forenoon with its work spells. Meanwhile the sun keeps on his old course.

"He cares for nobody, and nobody cares for him!"

Now, I am not tilting against daylight saving. I get as much fun out of it as anybody else; but while I can see popular reasons why things should be as they are, yet I cannot quite reconcile logic with a law which makes me save daylight when it is abundant, and commands me to stop saving it when it becomes scarce.

So, I have set down the facts pictorially, or geometrically, but as much as an argument—for I understand that there are matters of controversy much as indigestion, to get up in the chill of Winter sunrises which militate against daylight saving in Winter—but as something very interesting to think about.

This little chart showing the distribution of day and night in the two opposite seasons explains itself. In Summer, when we have, in middle latitudes, about fourteen hours of daylight against ten hours of night, we set ahead our watches, so that we bring the "eight o'clock breakfast" an hour nearer to sunrise; we make noon fall at 11 a. m. (six hours from sunrise and eight hours from sunset), and we have "seven o'clock dinner" an hour before sunset.

Save an Hour

By continuing this system through the Winter we would save an hour of the scanty daylight in the morning by getting "eight o'clock breakfast" at sunrise, while at the other end of the day we would cut in half the tedious and practically wasted period of waiting between dusk and "seven o'clock dinner" by putting the dinner an hour nearer sundown.

However, I repeat that I am not really advocating the continuance of daylight saving through the Winter, but merely calling attention to the matter. Further consideration might make the objections appear more decisive. Let me guard against pickers up of straws by saying that I have purposely omitted reference to the effects of the application of standard time to fixed localities, which accentuates some of the inequalities introduced by the daylight saving plan.

YOUR GROUCH MAY PROVE EXPENSIVE LUXURY

That grouch of yours in the morning takes a lot of joy out of your life and it is wholly unnecessary.

You want to be humored by the home folk and you think if you are "touchy" enough before breakfast or at the morning meal that the family, individually and collectively, will keep their hands off you and your plans.

So when you get to your business the remainder of that "grouch" makes you surly, discourteous and abrupt.

If you are a boss and in this belligerent mood when you reach your place of business, it sort of pleases you that a hush comes over the group of helpers you keep there. How much loyalty and genuine interest in your business does that sort of attitude induce in your employes?

If you are a real man at heart you will not want to take the enthusiasm and the pep out of your co-workers as well as your home folks. Your early morning grouch may prove a very expensive indulgence.

Fishing by Airplane

To the Friend of the People:

Fishing by aeroplane. This is a new venture, but it is bound to come. I see more in the English newspapers about it than here in America.

The great job of the fishermen is to find the locality of the fish. This has been made possible by high power aeroplanes. The tested observer from one of the machines is to locate the shoals of fish and then to signal his results to the fishing fleet nearby.

Wants Religious Peace

To the Friend of the People:

What's all this talk about peace in your People's Column? We all want peace and all we can do is to limit war in our present state of existence. The kind of war I would like to cease is the war of tongues.

If the religiously inclined will begin starting peace among the different denominations and stop their snarling at one another, it would be a feature of peace that I would like to reckon with. I would rather have war from bullets than a war of religious tongues.

Taste in Wall Paper

To the Friend of the People:

Your column seems to be dealing in details of interest to the public and uninformed. I will venture then this question: Do you think that a wife should have all to say about the decorations in her home?

Her husband has good taste. But where they clash is on the wall paper.

She wants a certain color and figure which he detests. She is bound to have her way because she has always prided herself on her artistic tastes.

Now I think that women by nature have a better idea of color than men. Don't you?

Blessing Vodka Shops

To the Friend of the People:

Blessing of the vodka shops where this drink is now allowed to be sold, by the priests of the Russian Church, must have been an unique ceremony, if the newspaper reports are correct.

It is said that the crowds which celebrated this event were very orderly and had the appearance of being a more religious ceremony than a carousal display.

The world has now a good opportunity of comparing both sides of this question, for the reintroduction of vodka drinking has much that is interesting as well as suggestive.

The Five-Cent Cigar

To the Friend of the People:

A writer in your column wants to know what makes happiness.

This is my idea: steady employment, a happy home and daily a good five-cent cigar. The late Vice-President Marshall was right on this cigar proposition.
